RIOTS IN VIENNA AND BERLIN, TROOPS CALLED, WORKMEN SLAIN

COLLAPSE IN COURT OF MRS. WILBUR.

Falls in Faint as Former Counsel Ends Testimony at the Homer Trial

Just as Paul H. McPherrin, formerly Mrs. Madge E. Wilbur's counsel, closed his testimony at the trial today of Dr. Joseph Homer, charged with stealing Mrs. Wilbur's jewels, Mrs. Wilbur, who was sitting on a front bench in the courtroom between her brother and her maid, fainted away and had to be taken out of the room.

The assistant district attorney followed, and afterward counsel held a brief conference at the bench. A recess was declared.

"I told him that he was a miserable skunk . . . and that I should go hunting such a man at a gunpoint," McPherrin said, when asked what he had told Dr. Homer when the doctor had sent to Mrs. Wilbur's brother in this city an anonymous telegram with the intent of making trouble for her.

It is expected that Dr. Homer will take the stand late today, for there is only one more witness to appear for the prosecution.

Questioned by Attorney Hughes, Mr. McPherrin testified that Mrs. Wilbur had an ulcerated tooth and that Dr. Homer treated her. After a dispute over the dental bill, he said, Dr. Homer admitted sending the "Sam Jones" telegram to her brother.

Water Freezes and Summer Only 48 Hours Off

Summer is less than forty-eight hours away. Hoy, page the steam heat!

Today was the coldest since May 3 in Boston. The mercury fell to 47 degrees in the early morning. But if you shivered in Boston's almost-Summer temperature, snuggle close to the stove and get this:

It was 28 at Northfield, Vt.

Jack Frost made a night raid on Canaan, N. H. The mercury dropped to 30 degrees. Early risers found water in dishes frozen.

Nantucket was the warmest place in New England, with a temperature of 56. Fair and warmer is the prediction for today and tomorrow.

Lexington had a slight frost this morning, although there was no great damage to the crops. Frozen hay was found in a field near the house of Patrolman W. Franklin Fletcher, and it was so cold at the Government Experimental Station in Concord that the men were working with gloves on.

COURT HOLDS UP ORR DIVORCE DECREE

A decree nisi divorce which was granted to Mrs. Isabel P. Orr of Worcester from George M. Orr, of the same city, by Judge Thayer in the Superior Court January 18, will not become absolute till further order of the court, it was learned today.

The information comes from an entry in the divorce docket in the office of the clerk of the court.

The reason for the court's action is not explained. It is said, however, that certain phases of the court are under investigation by Judge Thayer and Chief Justice John A. Aiken.

Mr. and Mrs. Orr are both prominent in Worcester. A few months ago, Mrs. Orr's name was mentioned in connection with the famous Carpeter divorce case in New Hampshire.

Mrs. Marguerite Paul Carpenter of Wolfboro and Boston at that time filed a petition in the Superior Court at Concord, N. H., asking that Walter E. Badger of Boston, formerly her counsel, turn over to her evidence which, she alleged, connected her husband, Major Ralph G. Carpenter, with Mrs. Orr.

The petition alleged that Mr. Badger was counsel for Mrs. Carpenter. It continued that Mr. Orr and Badger learned that on July 22, 1916, Mrs. Orr gave birth to a child, and that evidence was produced showing Major Carpenter to have been the father of the child. Other evidence, according to the petition, included records of telephone conversation and a copy of a letter written from Major Carpenter to Mrs. Orr.

This letter, according to Mrs. Carpenter, was headed "My darling wife," and spoke of the baby as "our own dear child." The copy was obtained, the petition asserted, by Elizabeth Lavin, Mrs. Carpenter's maid.

Mr. Badger denied that Major Carpenter figured in the Orr case.

American Troops Sent to Italy

MOBS IN HUN CAPITALS DEMAND PEACE AND FOOD

The following were today's principal developments in the war:

1.—Serious food riots have broken out in Vienna. Cavalry has been rushed to the city. The outbreak is reported to be the most serious that has occurred in Austria. Dispatches declare that peace demonstrations have been held in Berlin, Hamburg, Cologne, and that workmen were killed and many arrests made.

2.—Washington let it became known that American troops are being sent direct to Italy. The movement of Americans is believed to have been going on since it became known that the Austrians planned an offensive in Italy.

3.—The charge that Germany has uselessly sacrificed 500,000 men since March 21 is made by Herr Hoffman, Socialist member of the Prussian Chamber of Deputies.

4.—Official dispatches from Rome say the Italians have regained all the ground lost at Montello. Italian officials at Washington believe the tide on the Italian front has turned in favor of the allies. The Italian War Office announces gains on the Asiago plateau and the capture of hundreds of Austrians and machine guns. There is still fierce fighting along the Piave River.

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN,

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, June 20.—The general war situation was exceptionally favorable today. Officialdom was distinctly optimistic over a number of matters that stood out prominently. They included:

Certainty that the Austrian drive against the Italian front not only has been definitely checked, but realization that the settling waters of the Piave River, which have carried away many bridges, has thrown the forces of nature on the side of the defending Italian armies. The next 48 hours will bring increasingly better news from the Italian front, War Department officials declare.

Admission that certain American troop units are going directly to Italy. Their presence will hearten the Italians, as on the French front, at least for the present.

Gas Attack on Yankees Heaviest in Weeks

By NEWTON C. PARKE.

With the American Army in France, June 19—(night).—The Germans deluged our Lunaville sector with the heaviest gas attack in weeks this morning.

They mixed phosgins and mustard gas shells with high explosives. At the same time they pounded portions of the front with shrapnel.

However, the bombardment was not followed by any infantry attack.

STOCKYARDS UNDER LICENSE JUNE 25

President Assumes Control of Industry as Measure of National Defence

Washington, June 20.—President Wilson in a proclamation issued today places all stockyards under license, beginning June 25.

The proclamation was under the act of Congress to "provide further for the national security and defence by encouraging the production, conserving the supply and controlling the distribution of food products and fuel."

To the Secretary of Agriculture is delegated the duties of carrying into effect the provisions of the act and all departments of the government are directed to co-operate with him in administering the new licensing system.

Rules and regulations for licenses are being formulated by the bureau of markets and will be promulgated within the next few weeks. Suggestions will be received from stockmen, stock yard operators, representatives of live stock organizations and other interested parties.

Boston's "Loyalty Week" From June 28 to July 4

Boston is to have a "loyalty week," beginning June 28 and ending July 4.

The plan was officially launched by the Boston Public Safety Committee through its chairman, Victor A. Heath. Officials of other patriotic organizations have indorsed the plan. They believe it will stimulate patriotism and bring the people in closer touch with the ideals for which the United States is fighting and to a fuller realization of the sacrifices being made by the soldiers and sailors of this country now fighting for world democracy.

A program for every day during the week preceding the "glorious Fourth" has been arranged by the committee. New York is now trying the plan with success. A two weeks' program has been arranged in the Metropolis. Not to be outdone by New York the Boston Public Safety Committee decided to arrange for a week's program for the people of this city. Mr. Heath believes loyalty week in Boston will be an unqualified success. He says there are no more patriotic people in the country than

'JERRY' O'LEARY TO DESCRIBE FLIGHT

Sinn Fein Leader Accused as Spy Answers Questions in the Tombs

New York, June 20.—Jeremiah A. O'Leary will tell publicly the story of his flight West and his reasons for absconding.

The Sinn Fein leader and accused associate of German spies will be called to the witness stand in the Federal Court at the trial of his brother, John J. O'Leary, who is accused of criminally aiding Jeremiah's escape. His testimony is expected to encompass the scope of his relations with the mysterious Madame Magie Victorica, Carl Rodiger and other alleged agents of Germany.

Colonel Thomas B. Felder, chief counsel for John J. O'Leary, asserted last night that he had not the slightest idea what story Jeremiah will tell on the stand. Colonel Felder said:

"I am bewildered. I don't know whether this is Siberia or America. The government has refused me permission to consult with Jeremiah O'Leary, and so I am going to put him on the stand, blind, in the belief that he will tell me the full truth regarding his escape from the jurisdiction of the New York courts. 'We expect Jerry to say that

SEIZE NIGHT LETTERS' SENT BY TRAIN

A bundle of telegrams, which the senders believed had been sent over the wires as night letters, but which had in fact traveled by train, were captured by post office inspectors today at the South Station.

With them were taken into custody Reginald Thomas, eighteen years old, of No. 118½ East Eighth street, New York, employed by the Western Union Telegraph Company.

Thomas is charged with violating the postoffice law relative to carrying messages over regular post roads. The seizure of the "night letters" was planned by orders of the postmaster-general.

There were 105 messages in the bundle seized. Copies were made and forwarded to their destination.

Postoffice inspectors claim the system of sending "night messages" by messengers on trains has been in vogue some time.

Thomas had a bag which was strapped over his shoulder which contained the telegraphic messages. The postoffice inspectors allege they were carried by a relay of messengers between Washington and this city with junctions in Philadelphia and New York.

In the opinion of the postoffice officials this method of transacting business is a direct violation of the laws, as the government has the exclusive right of the use of the railroads for the transportation of its business, and any messages carried without being stamped are in violation of the law.

Boston American Readers to Help Pick Winners of $5,000 Song Contest

THE Hearst papers would like to see some splendid patriotic songs written to express the inspiring spirit of America in this great war.

To stimulate the song writers of the country to turn their talents in this patriotic direction, the Hearst papers offer FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS IN PRIZES for the best songs submitted to them, the $5,000 to be divided as follows: For the best song, to be selected by popular vote, $2,000; for the popular song which stands second in the poll, $1,000; for the third on the list when the ballots are counted, $500; for the fourth on the list when the ballots are counted, $250; for the fifth on the list when the ballots are counted, $250, and $100 each for the next ten in the voting.

A competent committee will select fifteen of the best songs and these will be published in sheet music form in the Hearst papers. The millions of readers of the Hearst papers will see and sing and play these songs, and will then by their verdict determine which of the fifteen deserve the first prize, which the second, and so forth.

The song writers will retain all rights to their songs except the right of publication in the Hearst papers. The object of these prizes is not to secure the rights to these songs but to stimulate the writing of patriotic songs of the highest order and to facilitate the distribution of those inspiring words and music scores among the millions of readers of the Hearst publications in order to arouse their patriotism to the highest pitch.

"I care not who makes the laws of a nation if I can but make the songs," said Andrew Fletcher of Saltoun in a letter to the Marquis of Montrose, the Earl of Rothes.

The Hearst papers have helped their readers make the laws of the nation and now wish to help them make the songs of the nation.

Intimation from neutral sources that Germany cannot spare any additional troops to operate with the Austrians because of the speed with which the American troops are being sent to France.

The Italian situation easily may become the turning point in the war, officials point out. All information reaching the State Department indicates that the internal situation in Austria is growing worse.

Failure in Italy, coupled with the inability of Germany to aid the military offensive, is likely to add to the discontent, officials say, with the result that a revolutionary movement in Austria is not beyond the bounds of possibility.

Regarding American plans for operations with the Italians, officials were reticent for military reasons. Beyond the admission that American troops are going directly to Italy, nothing was forthcoming as to plans. It is known that Italy has asked that as many men as can be spared be sent there, as much for the heartening effect they would have on the morale of the Italian people, as for their fighting ability, and that this will be done.

Austria's Drive Against Italy a "Hunger Offensive"

By International News Service.

London, June 20.—Austria's offensive against Italy, which began last Saturday morning, was launched for internal and political reasons, according to captured Austrians, said a dispatch from Rome, quoting a semi-official statement which had been issued there.

Austrian-Hungarian prisoners call the new drive a "hunger offensive."

"The enemy, in launching his great attack, responded to two strong impulses," said the semi-official statement. "First, there was the political necessity of obtaining a military success, due to the internal situation in Austria-Hungary; second, the necessity of obtaining supplies and raw materials to meet the wants of the population and the army."

The Austrians' hope of overrunning a wide area of Italy and then looting the country has been smashed.

A communication issued by the Italian War Office last night, said that the Austrians had not been able to renew their attacks between the Asiago plateau and Montello, although there were partial actions in the sectors of Monte Grappa and Montello.

The Italians and their allies carried out strong counter thrusts on the Asiago plateau, which resulted in the capture of prisoners.

"With unceasing pressure we shortened the front opened by the enemy south of the Monte Belluno railway," said the Italian War Office.

"On Tuesday afternoon the battle again broke out furiously on the Piave River. New attempts by the enemy to cross it to the right bank of the stream from San Andrea to Candoia were repulsed.

"A violent struggle raged in the sector of Falsalta, southeast of Meolo and north of Capo Sile. Every yard of ground was the scene of furious combats."

Terrific losses were inflicted on the masses of Austrians wedged in the narrow space on the right bank of the river.

The Piave River is in flood and many of the bridges over which the Austrians had crossed to the western bank have been swept away, the British War Office announced in a statement dealing with the situation on the Italian front.

The report added that while hard fighting continued on the Piave River the situation on that part of the line held by the British was unchanged.

Great Artillery Activity Develops on Picardy Front

London, June 20.—Great artillery activity has again developed in the Somme and Ancre valleys (Picardy front) and near Albert and La Bassee, the War Office stated today. Raids were carried out in the Lens and Ypres sectors of the Flanders front.

There was raiding activity elsewhere, also.

Eighteen German prisoners were captured. The text of the official report follows:

"There were raids in the Boyelles, Lens, Givenchy, Strazeele and Ypres sectors. Sharp fighting took place during which we inflicted casualties upon the enemy. The British captured eighteen prisoners and three machine guns. A hostile raid near Morlancourt was dispersed. German artillery developed actively during the night in the Somme and Ancre sectors. There were artillery duels north of Albert and near La Bassee Canal."

ARMENIANS WANT U. S. FORM OF GOVERNMENT

Worcester, June 20.—Armenians of this city have declared for Armenian independence after the war, and favor a republic with a plan of government modeled after that of the United States.

Today's War Summary

By FRANK CHARLTON.

International News Service Cable Editor.

The same masterly strategy, coupled with the spirit of "They shall not pass," which won for the allies on the battle fronts in France, is winning for the entente forces in the Italian theatre of war.

As the Italian counter assaults grow in strength in the mountains flanking the Asiago plateau and on the Piave River, the Austro-Hungarian attacks grow weaker. But there is little lessening in the violence of the fighting.

Further gains have been made by the Italian and allied forces in the Alps, while heavy thrusts on the Piave River are holding the Austrians in their battle positions.

Nature has come to the aid of the entente armies. The Piave River is now in flood and the freshet has washed away many of the bridges by which the Austrians were able to cross to the right bank.

Massed in a narrow space on the western side of the stream, the Austrian ranks are being raked with a devastating fire from the Italian artillery by night and by day.

The Austrian War Office claims that the Austro-Hungarian forces on the lower Piave have crossed the Fossetta canal at several points, but this has not been confirmed from any other source.

(The Fessetta canal runs from the Piave to the Sile River. It joins the Sile at Porte Grande, ten miles northeast of Venice and enters the Piave between Zenson loop and San Dona Di Piave.)

The vacillating tactics of the Austrian high command have led to great slaughter of the Austro-Hungarian armies and has enabled the Italians to hold the initiative since the offensive was launched last Saturday. In fact, it is not too early now to brand "Austria's supreme effort" as a total failure.

American airmen will soon be fighting alongside their Italian, French and British brethren in arms on the Italian front. A contingent (the first) has already left for that zone of battle.

The battle for Rheims, which opened on the western front in France Tuesday night, died out as suddenly as it began. It proved another costly failure for the German Crown Prince.

Nothing of especial importance has taken place on any of the four great battle fronts in France, although increased raiding and artillery activity on the Picardy and Flanders fronts indicates that the Germans may soon renew their efforts to break through to either Amiens or the Channel ports.

GRASS AND CORN POOR IN WORCESTER COUNTY

Worcester, June 20.—The grass crop in Central Massachusetts is poor this season, according to John E. Dearth, agricultural adviser for this county. Corn is poor, and he says too many farmers failed to test their seed before planting it. The potato acreage has increased and there is no longer a large milk surplus.

How the People of Boston Will Respond to Call of Loyalty Week

Following is the tentative plan for Loyalty Week in Boston, June 28 to July 4:

Friday, June 28—Newspaper Day. Day on which the Boston newspapers will be invited to print loyalty editorials.

Saturday, June 29—Children's Day. Neighborhood celebrations throughout the city with patriotic exercises of a simple nature for the children.

Sunday, June 30—Church Day. Day on which Boston clergymen will be invited to preach loyalty sermons in their churches.

Monday, July 1—Letter Day. On this day letters are to be written by residents of Boston to some soldier or sailor in the service of this country.

Tuesday, July 2—Angelus Day. Special prayer to be recited at noon for the victory of the allies.

Wednesday, July 3—Sacrifice Day. Promise to be made on this day by every Bostonian to give up for the duration of the war some indulgence and spend the price for same in war support.

Thursday July 4—Neighborhood celebrations with simple patriotic exercises. Gala program on Boston Common in evening participated in by all races.

WOMAN, 54, TO WED LODGER

Mrs. Jenkins Will Marry Ralph W. Gregg, 36; Younger Than Her Sons

A romance stranger than the romances of fiction has been brought to light through the application by Mrs. Ella M. Jenkins, fifty-four, for a license to wed Ralph Waldo Gregg, thirty-six, for years known to her neighbors as her son. Both reside in an apartment at No. 26 Hemenway street, Back Bay.

Mrs. Jenkins has been twice widowed. Her last husband died seventeen years ago. She has a married son.

Gregg went to live with Mrs. Jenkins and her late husband as a boy of fifteen. He was regarded by neighbors as an adopted son, and until recently, it is claimed, addressed Mrs. Jenkins as "Mother." She called him "My boy, it is said.

Emory E. Freeman, janitor of the apartment house, understood that they were mother and son.

Mrs. Jenkins, however, in an interview, referred to Gregg as "a lodger of mine," and "my son's chum."

"IT'S NOBODY'S BUSINESS,"

"What if I am to marry my son's chum! It's nobody's business but his and mine, is it? I'm a lonely woman since my children grew up and went away, and if I want to marry a man of thirty-six, who has been a lodger of mine for more than twenty years, I fail to see what business of other people's it is."

This is Mrs. Jenkins' third matrimonial venture, her last husband having died seventeen years ago. Gregg, who is a private secretary in a down-town hotel, has roomed with Mrs. Jenkins family since his fifteenth year. Neighbors of the couple, who occupy suite 9 of the Hemenway street apartment house, say that they have always been regarded as "mother and son." This relationship was also understood to exist by the janitor, Emory E. Freeman at that address.

In discussing her forthcoming marriage to Mr. Gregg, Mrs. Jenkins indignantly denied that the relationship of "foster mother" to her star roomer.

"Why, I never even called him 'son' or any other term of endearment that might lead people to think he was my son. Mr. Gregg was simply a roomer in my home the same as is customary in thousands of other homes who take lodgers." declared Mrs. Jenkins today.

"Mr. Gregg worked for my husband, and took a room at my home when he was fifteen years old. He always paid his room-rent like any other roomer. I never sent him to school or 'educated' him at my expense, as the newspapers insinuated. He was older than my own boy, anyway.

"Mr. Gregg has always lived with us since that time. I was accustomed to speak to him as one of the boys perhaps, when I referred to my own children; but I never was partial to him or made of him as I did of my own flesh and blood.

MAY HAVE CALLED HER "MA."

"He may have called me 'ma' when he was younger, as he was always running around with my sons and naturally took on their way of addressing me. But I am not, and I have never been, his foster mother. His own mother is living today. Why should he call me 'mother?'

"I have the greatest respect for Mr. Gregg, and in all the twenty-one years of his rooming at my house he had never been anything but a perfect gentleman and a friend. He works steadily and never loses a day from his duties. He is my ideal of a hard-working, conscientious young man.

"I am getting old, and since my children grew up and left home am often lonely. What was more natural than that I should look to Mr. Gregg for companionship? He is thirty-six and I am only fifty-four. That is not a very great difference in ages these days. So we just decided that it would make things happier all around if we got married. Hence our action in taking out a marriage license.

"But now that all this horrid publicity has come out in the papers I feel like tearing the hair out of my head. I am not so sure, now, that we will be married at all—even if we can get in the papers about us. It is very embarrassing to us both. I have lived here for nearly seven years, and am known all over the country because of my association with the management of the——"

"WHAT WILL THEY THINK?"

"I have been active in the management of many of the best hotels, both in the West and here in New England. I know practically every traveling man in the country. What will they think of me when they read that untrue story in the morning papers. It is terrible for a sensitive woman like me to be held up as a laughing stock to my friends.

"I wish you would deny the false statements about me and publish only what I have told you, if you must publish anything. I do not see what need there is of saying anything more about it.

"No, we haven't set any day for the wedding, and we have no plans for a honeymoon. We've suffered enough from publicity already.

"A photograph of myself for the newspapers? I guess not! They will have the time of their lives to get my photograph. And they'd better not publish it if they get one. I will go to the limit of the law to stop them from holding me up to ridicule."

NEW ENGLAND CHILDREN FIND MANY WAYS TO EARN MONEY FOR WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

Marion Stevens, ten-year-old Hyde Park girl, who washes dishes for her mother and uses the money she earns to buy War Savings Stamps.

Bessie Rockman, eleven-year-old little Hyde Park miss, who runs errands for her father, aids her mother around the house, and practices on the piano, using the pennies she accumulates in these ways to buy War Savings Stamps.

Melville Blagdon, ten years old, who attends the fifth grade of the Ellihu Greenwood School, Hyde Park, and buys War Savings Stamps with the money he earns by running errands, and his school mate, Stanley Pierce, aged nine, who is in the third grade. At the right is Marion Ruth Freeman, an eighth grade scholar, and above are Ernest Chapman and Marion Devlin of the eighht grade.

CHARGES WIFE SLIGHTED HOME FOR MOVIES

Quincy Man Says She Is Needed by Three Children; in Court as "Idle"

Because Mrs. Lillian Nihan, of No. 56 Adams street, Quincy, is alleged to have preferred the movies, dances and candles in preference to her home with her husband and children, she was in Quincy court today charged with being idle and disorderly. Her case was continued until June 29 with the understanding that she return to her home.

Daniel H. Nihan, her husband, said money which he gave her to pay household bills was used for movies, dances and sweets. He also testified he had been made a wife of sailors and that she refused to recognize him as her husband on those occasions. He testified she refused to wear her wedding ring after twelve years of married life.

Mrs. Nihan said her husband beat and choked her. She also testified that he was jealous.

The couple have three children, eleven, nine and six years old.

SERVANTS REMEMBERED IN WILL OF MILTON MAN

A million dollar bond was furnished by The New England Trust Company, executor of the estate of the late William Ernestus Bowditch of Milton, whose will, consisting of $200,000 in real estate and $650,000 personal property, has been allowed by the Norfolk Probate Court.

A cash gift of $500 each is given to Thomas Hunt, William Hansbury, Elias Butler, Julia O'Donahoe, Mary A. Donohoe and $1,000 to Mary Haviland, all employed in the testator's household as servants for many years. Mrs. Cynthia Arey, employed in Mr. Bowditch's office, also receives $500.

The estate is to be held in trust for the benefit of the widow, Mrs. Margaret Swann Bowditch, during her life and upon her death property is left to four children.

BOSTON LAWYER MARRIES ROXBURY YOUNG WOMAN

Joseph M. Levenson, one of the best known attorneys of Boston and a brother of Max L. Levenson, Assistant Attorney-General of Massachusetts, was married to Miss Frances Hahn of Roxbury at the Hotel Tuileries. The ceremony was performed by Dr. Lewis Goldberg of Norfolk, Va., a relative of the groom.

Mary had a little book—
It grew and grew and grew;
And when 'twas full she got a bond—
Was Little Mary You?

It followed her to school one day.
'Twas quite within the rules—
It coaxed the other kids to pay.
Which shows that they weren't fools.

When Mary done a college cap,
Her bond will help her through.
The Kaiser'll be in—Halifax;
Invest—or so will you!

It's a great lesson for loafers.

Meaning the War Savings Stamp Letter contest which the Boston AMERICAN is now conducting for the school boys and girls of Boston and New England.

Talk about "work-hounds."

The letters which the school children are sending in competition for the weekly prizes of five dollars, two dollars and one dollar show how many ways a "kiddie" may earn money.

Especially if the seeker after work is spurred on by real patriotic impulse like "War Savies."

MANY WAYS TO EARN.

Any able-bodied man who complains that he can't find work ought to scan these letters. They show dozens of methods pursued by the youngsters. For example:

Washing dishes.
Sweeping.
Running errands (prime favorite).
Gardening.
Practicing (oh, you piano exercises).
Helping mother, father and others.
Selling papers.
Logging ice.

One of the most original ways of earning money is told by twelve-year-old Annie B. Green of No. 928 Harrison avenue. She takes care of the dog for her father at a nickel a day.

HAS BOUGHT $245.50 WORTH.

Children at the Ellihu Greenwood Grammar School in Hyde Park are sending in letters. This is the school mentioned by Superintendent Frank B. Dyer as one which had done remarkably well in "War Savies."

The Grade Four Thrift Club at that school, numbering forty boys and girls, already has accumulated $245.50 worth of Thrift Stamps. Marion Stevens of the Fourth Grade, Melville Blagdon of the Fifth and Bessie Rockman of the Sixth are among those sending in letters.

Today's batch of letters shows how the school children of Greater Boston are competing for the weekly awards. Yesterday's letters ranged from Maine down to Rhode Island and Connecticut, for this educational and patriotic competition is open to all school children of Boston and New England except high school pupils.

Children—Remember to have your letters indorsed by your teacher or clergyman. Some still forget about that. Read the rules before you start your letter.

The letters are wonderfully interesting. Above all they have the inimitable charm of childhood, which grown-ups cannot imitate.

The children are invited, in this contest, to write letters to the Boston AMERICAN on this subject: "How I Am Earning Money for War Savings Stamps."

LETTERS MUST BE SHORT.

The letters must be brief—100 words is the limit and that's a plenty.

Remember to write on one side of the paper only. Remember, too, that you must give your name, age, home address and school.

Send your letters to the War Stamp Editor, Boston AMERICAN, No. 82 Summer street, Boston.

Here are some of the latest letters:

BESSIE ROCKMAN, eleven years: I earned my money for Thrift Stamps going errands, washing dishes, sweeping the floor, practising on the piano and helping my mother wash the floor, going up to town for my father Saturday afternoons, doing other people's dishes and helping them sweep up the floor.

Ellihu Greenwood school, Grade VI., Hyde Park.

MELVILLE BLAGDON, ten years: This is the way I have earned my money. I have gone on errands for people who gave me some times a dime, and sometimes a dime. I take the money to school and Miss McKenna, my teacher, saves it in a bank for me. When I get twenty-five cents she gives me a Thrift Stamp. I am learning to be thrifty and am helping Uncle Sam.

Ellihu Greenwood school, Grade V., Hyde Park.

MARION STEVENS, ten years: We have a Thrift Club in our room. Forty children belong to our club. We have $345.50 in Thrift Stamps. We promised Uncle Sam we would save our pennies for him and buy Thrift Stamps. Thrift Club means we are going to be thrifty. Thrifty means we are not going to spend all our money. Saving money means helping Uncle Sam. One day mother asked me if I would like to help and I said yes. I washed the dishes and put on my apron. It took me twenty minutes to do it. Since then I have done a great many things. I hope this money will help Uncle Sam to buy gunpowder and ships to carry the soldiers to France to fight the Germans and to kill the Kaiser.

Ellihu Greenwood School, Grade IV., Hyde Park.

ANNIE B. GREEN, twelve years: Two weeks ago I asked my mother if I could buy any War Savings Stamps. But she said: "You are too young to work to buy any stamps just yet." The following week my father bought a dog which was very small. Then he said: "Here's a little job for you." When I asked him what it was—to take care of the dog. First I did not want to do it. Then I thought a while. How much will you pay me, father? I asked. Thirty cents a week, he said. Then I said "yes." And that is how I am doing my bit at home in buying War Savings Stamps.

No. 928 Harrison avenue, Boston; Everett School, grade 7.

ARTHUR McMAHON, ten years: What have I done for my government. Every morning I get up at 6 o'clock and sell ice to the neighbors. I have a card and get the ice down at the milk sheds, have one War Savings Stamp and twelve Thrifts.

No. 22 Pinckney street, Somerville; Prescott School.

ANNA STAFFORD, twelve years: My mother is not well so I have to help keep house, but after my work is finished I do the errands for several ladies on our block. Sometimes they give me one penny and sometimes two or three, and I save every one for Stamps. Today I started on my second Thrift Stamp book. I buy them in school.

No. 22 Wellington street, Boston; Everett School.

HELEN WINIFRED FENWICK, eight years: My mama died last year and I came from Cleveland to live with my Auntie. She is not very well so I help her dust and dry dishes and I save the pennie she gives me for Thrift Stamps and I have most a book full.

23 Wellington street, Boston, Everett school.

Conditions of Stamp Letter Contest

The conditions for the Boston AMERICAN'S War Stamp letter competition are as follows:

Open to school children of Boston and New England, except high school pupils.

Subject: "How I am Earning Money for War Savings Stamps."

Prizes—$5, $2 and $1 weekly in cash for best letters.

Each letter must be endorsed by a clergyman or teacher as guarantee that the letter is the child's own composition.

Length—Not over 100 words.

Write on one side of the paper only. Give name, age, school and home address.

Send letters to War Stamp Editor, Boston AMERICAN, No. 82 Summer street, Boston.

Loyalty Week Plan Is Indorsed by Gov. McCall

By GOV. SAMUEL W. McCALL.

I heartily indorse the movement for a Loyalty Week. It is worthy of our whole-hearted support, and I urge upon all our people to enter enthusiastically into the spirit of the week, to the end that we may make it the success it should have.

Our loyalty is capable of expression in many ways. We as a people feel perhaps that the only expressions of patriotism that count are exemplified by those who actively engage in warfare upon the firing line. That, doubtless, is the most commanding form.

But there are other ways of showing our patriotism, however, that, while not so appealing, are vitally essential to the success of our arms. The exercise of these forms require great sacrifice, labor, thought and all the ability that we have, but they seldom receive the plaudits of the people. We should all feel our responsibility and do that which lies nearest at hand, without thought to its effect other than of helpfulness to our country.

EX-GOV. WALSH ILL WITH THROAT TROUBLE

Former Governor David I. Walsh has been confined to his home in Clinton with throat trouble, which has affected him since his recent return from Buffalo. It has kept him away from his duties as delegate to the Constitutional Convention and prevented him from attending the commencement exercises at Holy Cross College. His throat has improved, however, so that he is daily expected back at his law offices in Boston.

VANDERBILT ESTATE TOO SMALL FOR LEGACIES

New York, June 20—George W. Vanderbilt, who died in March, 1914, did not leave sufficient property in New York State to pay the legacies he provided for in his will. This was made known when the State Comptroller filed a report upon the Vanderbilt estate in the Hall of Records.

The report shows that the New York estate of the defendant is $1,-219,863.2 cents, or $629,240 net. By his will, Vanderbilt provided legacies aggregating about $1,200,000. As there were insufficient funds to pay the legacies, they were reduced pro rata.

Mrs. Edith Stuyvesant Vanderbilt, his widow, who was bequeathed $250,000, received $178,435. The other legatees received proportionate amounts of their bequests.

KENNEYS TO OBSERVE 25TH WEDDING DAY

Members of the Legislature, city officials and political leaders have been invited to attend the silver wedding anniversary of former Representative James T. Kenney, president of the Wilson Club of Ward 13, in International Hall, Warren street, Roxbury, this evening.

ROXBURY BOY BADLY WOUNDED IN BATTLE

Private William A. Mahony of the 4th Company, Sixth Regiment, Marine Corps, reported severely wounded in France, is a nephew of Mrs. Cecelia Carey of No. 15 Dewey street, Roxbury. He was born at Roxbury twenty years ago. He enlisted in the Marine Corps in February of last year.

FIRST FARMERETTES ARRIVE IN NEWPORT

Newport, R. I., June 20.—The first draft of farmerettes has arrived at "Bathesham-in-the-woods." In the suburbs of Newport.

They will have a housekeeper, and the business details will be cared for by a committee, of whom Edith Moore is chairman. They are to work on the farm and will be paid $2 a day.

LOYALTY WEEK TO STIR CITY'S PATRIOTISM

those in Boston and he points to the recent reception to the French "Blue Devils" as proof of it.

Mr. Heath has appointed a committee of widely known Boston men and women to assist in making the necessary arrangements. All the persons named by him are members of the Boston Public Safety Committee and are now doing important war work.

The committee follows:

Mayor Andrew J. Peters.
Victor A. Heath, chairman Boston Public Safety Committee.
Alexander Wadsworth, corporation counsel for Boston, director of Americanization work for State committee.
James A. McKibben, secretary of Chamber of Commerce.
Major E. F. O'Keefe, vice-president Cosmopolitan Trust Company and chairman of subcommittee of Public Safety Committee.
S. Parkman Shaw, Old Colony Trust Company.
Weld Rollins, chairman Preliminary Military Training Committee.
Col. Thomas F. Sullivan, Public Works Commissioner, State guard, and member of Executive Committee of Public Safety Committee.
Dr. F. P. Denfield, chairman Committee on Hygiene and Medicine of Public Safety Committee, owner of Iver Johnson Arms.
Gen. Francis Peabody, chairman Finance Committee of Public Safety Committee, member of Executive Committee of Boston Metropolitan Chapter of Red Cross.
Major John E. Gilman, Soldiers' Relief Commissioner, Past Commander G. A. R., member Executive Committee of Public Safety Committee.
A. Shuman, leading Boston merchant.
George F. Johnson, chairman Food Production Committee and president H. H. White Company.
J. Walter Mullen, member State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration and Executive Committee of Public Safety Committee.
Felix Vorenberg, prominent Boston business man.
F. H. Jennings, business Agent C. L. U.
Miss Mary Barr, chairman Boston Women's Committee, Food Conservation.
A. Lincoln Filene, leading Boston merchant.
Charles H. Parker, former city treasurer and financier.
W. W. Fitzgerald, Register of Deeds, Suffolk County.
Miss Bessie Wendell, Special Aid Society president, and War Savings and Liberty Loan committees.

In commenting on the plan for a "loyalty week" in Boston Chairman Heath of the Public Safety Committee said:

"I think it is a fine plan and will work out well. It is now being tried successfully in New York, and surely Boston does not want New York to get ahead of it. Boston is the home of the 'cradle of liberty,' and when it comes to patriotism the people of all other cities in this country haven't got anything on Bostonians—to use a slang phrase.

"By means of the daily programs during loyalty week we hope to bring home to the people of this city a fuller realization of what the United States is doing in this war and to put them in close touch with the men who are fighting in the uniform of this country. We hope through these programs to get the people to do more for the government than they have been doing.

"On the first day we will ask the various Boston newspapers to write leading editorials on the subject of loyalty to the Stars and Stripes. We will respectfully ask that they will be willing to give space for this purpose.

"The second day will be devoted to children's exercises throughout the city. They will be of a simple character. Boston children will be requested to preach loyalty sermons on the third day.

"One of the most interesting days should be Monday, July 1, which we have designated as letter day. Briefly every letter from the front which we have received the past year and they are to receive mail and the home newspapers. On 'letter day' we hope to get every soldier or sailor or any one serving Uncle Sam. Nearly everybody has a relative or friend in the army or navy and if he hasn't we will ask him to get in touch with the proper authorities who will give him the name and address of a soldier or sailor to whom this idea should be extended. I think every person in this city should make it a part of his day to write a letter to some soldier. He should write at least once a week or once a fortnight.

"For 'Angelus' day we are going to set a time during the noon hour when we will request all Bostonians to pause and recite the special prayer asking God's blessings on the arms of the United States and her allies.

"On the day designated 'sacrifice day' we hope every man, woman and child in this city will make a vow to refrain from eating or drinking some favorite article or from doing some thing. If a man smokes four cigars a day we hope he will decide to cut the number down to three or two and spend the balance for war savings stamps or in some other way help the government. If a girl usually eats two boxes of candy a week we hope she will do without one and put the rest of the money into support of the government.

"The week will end with fine programs throughout the city now being arranged by the public celebration committee of the city.

"As the result of loyalty week the people of Boston should be spurred to greater activity in behalf of the country."

MRS. WILBUR IN FAINT; RECESS ORDERED

her brother to come out to California to show that she had been compromised, so that he would advise her to marry him.

The telegram said that Mrs. Wilbur had given her jewels to a young doctor and mortgaged her automobile. It advised her brother to come West at once to prevent the doctor getting control of her property.

Q—What did you say? A—I told him that he was a miserable skunk and anything but a gentleman.

Q—Did you tell him that would be the probable effect of the telegram on the man who received it? A—Yes; I told him he took a chance of physical violence at the hands of her brother, and that under certain circumstances I would look up such a man at a gunpoint.

Q—Did Mrs. Wilbur say anything about a mortgage on her automobile? A—She said she had talked about it. She did not give a mortgage, but it had been suggested that she should.

Q—What was the suggestion? A—She said Stanley Anderson, proprietor of the Beverly Hills Hotel, had suggested the mortgage to protect her from the doctor. It was a phony mortgage.

PROTESTED $30 FEE.

Mr. McPherrin testified that after he got Mrs. Wilbur's jewels back he told Dr. Homer to stop calling at his office because he was imposing on him. He testified that the doctor paid McPherrin's bill for professional services when he first called on Mrs. Wilbur at her hotel, but that the doctor protested against his charge of $30 on the ground that it was too high.

Q—Did you ever hear that Dr. Homer had changed his name several times? A—I had heard so.

Q—Did you hear that his wife obtained a divorce from him? A—I knew he was a divorced man, but I did not know who got the divorce.

Q—After you called on Mrs. Wilbur at the Hotel Raymond did she tell you that he had forced his way into her room? A—Yes, a number of times.

Q—How many times? A—More than once, possibly less than twenty.

Q—Did you tell him afterward that you would have him put in jail if he continued? A—Yes.

Y—Did she continue to complain that he forced his way into her room? A—I can't remember. I told him to desist or steps would be taken to make him do so.

Q—Did he stop? A—From what happened at the Hotel Maryland, I should say not.

Q—Did you write to her brother? A—Yes; I don't know where the letter is unless you have it.

Q—Why do you say I have it? A—I thought you might have it.

SAYS VISITS CONTINUED.

District Attorney Gallagher was asked whether he had the letter. He said that he had not.

McPherrin said he ceased to be Mrs. Wilbur's lawyer when she left Los Angeles last year. He said he did not keep a copy of the letter he sent to her brother, Mr. Hunter.

Q—After you went to the Hotel Raymond, to see Mrs. Wilbur, did the doctor stop going to her room? A—No, Mrs. Wilbur said he did not.

Q—What did you do? A—I talked with Dr. Homer and remonstrated with him.

Q—Did you ever ask the Los Angeles police to protect her? A—No.

Q—Did she tell you she had made her will in favor of Dr. Homer and had given him a power of attorney? A—She did, but I can't remember the date.

Q—Did she ever tell you she had pawned her jewels? A—She never said they were pawned. She said she had borrowed money on the security of the jewels.

OBJECTS TO WORD "PAWN."

Judge Lawton suggested, as the witness did not like the word "pawn," that "pledge" be used.

Q—Did Mrs. Wilbur say she had been taken to a terrible place, beaten, and kept there till six o'clock in the morning, when she had to find her way home alone? A—Yes, she told me so.

Q—What did you do? A—Nothing.

Q—How many occasions did she describe? A—I don't recall.

Here witness asked Mrs Wilbur's brother, Mr. Hunter, for the letter he had sent to him. Mr. Hunter did not have it.

Assistant District-Attorney Gallagher then offered to produce a copy of the letter. A recess was declared to permit Mr. McPherrin to examine it. After recess testimony was resumed.

Q—Did she ever tell you in any form of words that she had consented to marry Dr. Homer A—I can't answer the question in that way.

Q—Did Mrs. Wilbur say before she left Los Angeles she had received a telegram from the doctor in Chicago or had written to him? A.—No.

LOCKED IN BY LANDLORD, LODGER BREAKS DOOR

Worcester, June 20.—What's a man going to do when he wants to go out of an evening and finds the door of his room locked?

Harlow D. Tubbs broke the door down. Then his landlord had him arrested.

Tubbs said the landlord had taken the key, and he wanted to get out. Judge Utley discharged him.

O'LEARY TO TELL STORY OF HIS FLIGHT

Lyons or himself bought the tickets to St. Louis, that the plan for both of them to go West was formulated after John O'Leary left them and absolutely without John's knowledge. I haven't the slightest idea what Jeremiah's present mental or physical condition is, but I know that if he tells the truth he will clear my client."

IS IN BETTER HEALTH.

Colonel Felder declared in his opening address that if Jerry intended to run away, John was the last man in the world he would have confided in. The attorney said the brother would contradict flatly the story of Lyons that John bought the tickets to St. Louis. He intimated also that he would show mental irresponsibility upon the part of Jerry.

In his cell the Sinn Fein leader received written questions. These concerned a possible confession, and the report that menial irresponsibility will be his defense at his treason trial. The prisoner wrote out this reply:

"I regret that I cannot answer your questions. I trust that the newspapers will refrain from publishing irresponsible rumors. The public mind should not be deceived, nor should any effort to distort the truth be encouraged. I have pleaded not guilty. That plea stands as my answer and my defense.

(Signed) JEREMIAH J. O'LEARY."

Tombs attendants said the prisoner was in better physical condition than on Tuesday. It is believed he will be able to stand the ordeal of a wearing cross-examination.

The defence at the trial of John O'Leary called half a dozen character witnesses.

JOHN'S REPUTATION GOOD.

Colonel Felder asked each witness to give his or her opinion of John O'Leary's reputation for loyalty and patriotism. All replied that John was a loyal, reputable citizen.

Assistant District Attorney Earl B. Barnes, inclosing the government's case, created something of a stir by calling Colonel Felder to testify for the prosecution. Colonel Felder protested bitterly against taking the stand, but was directed by Judge Hand that he properly might tell events and conversations that occurred before he boarded John O'Leary's attorney, on May 26 last.

Despite angry protests, Mr. Barnes compelled Colonel Felder to tell in detail the whole story of John's alleged attempt to keep him misinformed of Jerry's whereabouts.

NAVY YARD GIRLS STEAL MARCH ON SISTERS

Borrow Wherry of Little Building Yeowomen for Practice Spin on Charles

The yeogirls at the Navy Yard put something over on the yeogirls from the Little Building.

Now the Little Building maids say they dont think it was fair and the rivalry between the two stations in the boat races to be held on Navy Day, June 29, will be keener than ever. On hits day, as everybody in New England now knows, a giant aquatic carnival has been ordered held in the Charles River Basin by Rear Admiral Spencer S. Wood. Not the least important feature of the day will be the wherry race by yeogirl crews from the various stations.

It appears, on the authority of one chief yeoman at the Little Building, that what happened was this:

ANXIOUS FOR PRACTICE.

The crews at the Navy Yard were frantically anxious to get some rowing practice in anticipation of taking their place in the race. One crew in particular, composed of girls from the Navy Yard telephone switchboard, had been besieging Lieutenant A. A. Gathemann for boats in which to practice. Mr. Gathemann had been appointed by Commander William H. Rush as the director for the Navy Yard for the sports on Navy Day, and was doing his best. But boats were slow in coming and the lieutenant was himself nearly distracted.

"My dear children," said he "I can't build boats for you. As soon as I get them you get yours and that's the best I can do."

But that wasn't good enough for the telephone girls.

It occurred to one of them to wait no longer.

"Why don't we borrow a boat?" she asked. "The Little building girls have some boats up at the B. A. A. boat house. What about going up there and taking one of those?"

ONLY BOATS, BUT—

How did those telephone girls know, they say, that those boats tied up at the B. A. A. float were more precious than much fine gold to the Chief Yeoman Jane P. Nagle and her crew? Boats were just boats in the eyes of the telephone contingent.

So they went up there late in the afternoon and when a crew of five pretty Navy girls appeared at the club house a harassed float tender, to whom all Navy girls were alike, turned over to them a new and very varnished wherry and they started out on the river.

In the course of time there appeared Miss Nagle and the others of the Little Building crew to whom that particular wherry was the most prized of possessions.

"You cannot imagine it!"

MADE SOME NOISE.

"What! Our wherry!" The Little Building crew stood on the float of the B. A. A. and they made a noise that caused unsuspecting persons away across the river to turn suddenly with the thought that someone was drowning.

"You come out of that! Come out of that boat!"

By the time the boat had been delivered and the rightful crew established it was nearly dark and another evening of practice was gone forever.

But Miss Nagle and the membe of her aggregation say that they will get even, and one way in which they are going to do it is to practice rowing from now on by moonlight in order to make up for the advantage gained by the Navy Yard telephone girls.

REMEMBER THE DATE, NAVY DAY, JUNE 29

Navy Day, the big carnival on Charles River Basin ordered by Rear Admiral Spencer S. Wood, is to be on Saturday, June 29. The original date, June 17, was cancelled by Rear Admiral Wood, and June 29 selected by him as the big day. Remember, Navy Day —June 29.

GIRL KNOCKED DOWN BY AUTO, SEVERELY BRUISED

While crossing Everett avenue, near Walnut street, Chelsea, Ruth Shapiro, five, was struck and knocked down by an automobile owned by Gordon & Berman of No. 719 Atlantic avenue and operated by Phillip Gordon of No. 104 Maple street, Roxbury. The driver picked the little girl up and rushed her to the Frost Hospital, Chelsea, where upon examination she was found to be severely bruised and no bones broken. The driver reported the accident to the Chelsea police.

STATE INCOME TAX WILL YIELD ABOUT $13,500,000

Semi-official figures from the State Tax Commissioner estimate that the Massachusetts income tax this year will yield about $13,500,000, an increase of $1,500,000 over the amount received last year. The official announcement is not expected before August 1.

19-YEAR PRISON TERM BEGUN BY GRACE LUSK

"This Is the End of All Things for Me," Declares Convicted Schoolmistress

Waupun, Wis., June 20.—The gray walls of the Wisconsin State prison today closed behind Grace Lusk, slayer of Mrs. Mary Newman Roberts, wife of Dr. David Roberts, former State veterinarian.

"This is the end of all things for me," said the former school mistress, who a year ago next Friday killed the wife of the man she loved and then sought to take her own life. Miss Lusk was sentenced to nineteen years' imprisonment after having been convicted of murder in the second degree.

The convicted woman was brought to the prison from Waukesha in an automobile.

"Drive me along slowly that I may see much of God's blessed sunshine on this last day of my freedom," said the prisoner before the journey was begun. "this is the last request I will ever make." And the car was driven slowly for the whole ninety miles.

"Food Will Win the War"

"Economize and cut down on foods that are needed for our fighting men and allies and use part of the money thus saved in buying more milk.

"Dollar for dollar, milk is one of the cheapest foods we have, measured by its nutritive value. Milk has many healthful qualities in addition. Cut out heavy, greasy foods and stimulating table drinks and use more milk. Use a quart of milk a day for every child, a pint for every adult."

HENRY B. ENDICOTT,
State and Federal Food Administrator.

What's in a name?

A SHORT while ago we received a letter from our Paris office notifying us that Patrick Casey would call on us soon in Boston.

Yesterday he came. We found him a typical French poilu, speaking very little English, dressed in the French horizon-blue and accentuating everything he said with French gestures.

His story is interesting. he was wounded and taken prisoner by the Germans. He was ill-treated in German prison camps and finally contracted typhus.

Typhus is almost always deadly. The Germans gave him no medicine nor medical treatment. The only way he could get medicine was to write his symptoms to his wife in France, who took the symptoms to a doctor and sent medicine to him in Germany.

Finally the Germans decided he was sure to die, and to save expenses shipped him back to France to die. Whereupon the Irish in him came to the surface; he defied both germs and Germans, and recovered!

Lucie Casey, his wife, is an indispensable member of the Filene Paris office. While her husband fought she worked for the Allied cause by helping in our work of providing gifts for American soldiers.

If you want this little Frenchwoman to go to a store in Paris, pick out something for your boy and send it to him, no matter what part of France he may be in, all you need do is to call here, tell us what you wish sent and leave the money.

Filene dress-like aprons

Come in graded sizes like dresses, of excellent dress percales, and to make them pretty and attractive is our special duty.

$1.25

The short, loose-fitting kimono sleeves, the elastic belt, the front opening, are the reasons why many women prefer them to house dresses. One of the many, many new ones for summer is sketched, $1.25. Most of them are made of our own materials.

A tea-rose tub skirt $7.50

(Sketched)

Surprising in strong, tubbable gabardine in a delicious shade of tea-rose, blue, grey and tan.

$7.50

THREE THOUSAND new tub skirts include sheer, lovely organdies, voiles, muslin, as well as the heavier gabardines, corduroys and khakis, $3 to $12.75. Larger women's white skirts, $5 to $10.

(Filene's—mail orders filled—fifth floor)

Waists

—the styles women are making most popular:

SKETCHED—Crisp organdie blouses, as fresh as a daisy. Tiny little frills and narrow Valenciennes insertion to trim them, $3.

THEIR youthfulness and becomingness are the real reasons behind the great popularity of round-necked blouses. As pretty as any we've seen are some of fine French voile with wide, plaited, pointed frills at neck and cuffs, $4. These button on shoulders.

OVER-THE-HEAD blouses of good crepe de Chine are here at $4, too. Simply made with just a tiny frill around collars and cuffs and a black ribbon lacing at front. Flesh or white.

WELL-MADE blouses of striped madras, collared and cuffed with pique, are excellent for business or sports, and a good Filene value at $1.50.

Sweaters

SKETCHED—Sleeveless and collarless slip-on sweaters of fibre silk, knitted after the fashion of men's silk ties. Most women who buy them can tell them from the real silk only by the price on their price tags. Lovely rich sport shades, $4.

GOOD slip-on sweaters of zephyr yarn with sleeves and deep sailor collars are still obtainable for $6.50. Such good colors as nile, Copenhagen, salmon, rose, purple, turquoise and green.

OTHER fibre silk slip-on sweaters, also sleeveless and collarless. A pretty, fancy weave, as elastic as a knitted silk tie, $5.

SHETLAND slip-on sweaters, purled in at waist and done in fancy stitch below, $7.50. Tan, turquoise and rose.

(Filene's—fifth floor—mail orders filled)

Vacationists

CORSETS have a good deal to do with getting the most out of one's vacation, whether actively or inactively spent. Netting corsets with very low tops, comfortable and cool, $1.25 to $2.50; elastic hip confiners, favorites with athletic women, $1.50 to $4. (Third floor.)

TOYO panama-like sport hats that roll up like a diploma and take about as little space in suitcase or trunk, $3. Bands with which to decorate them, striped or polka dotted in yellow, pink, red, or navy, 45c and 85c. Fringe-trimmed, $1.50. (Street floor.)

IMPROVED as to shape of toe, with heels and an inner sole to prevent drawing, high-cut sneakers, $2.25; brown or white, make good shoes to wear tramping around a camp, in a boat and for general vacation wear. Sizes 2½ to 7. (Fourth floor.)

SLEEVELESS over-the-head sweaters of fibre silk, knit to remind one of a man's silk tie, are $4 and $5, in lovely sport colors. And are you sure you can tell one from a pure silk sweater? (Fifth floor.)

TAKE along a jar of good cream to prevent painful sunburn and that ugly redness. Our Toilet Goods Shop will gladly recommend a good kind. (Street floor.)

A WOMAN we know who started off for the Pine Tree State with a new traveling bag told us she was as delighted with it as she might be over a new frock. She showed us its silk lining and the ten fittings in limousine case, very much as a child would show a new toy. Similar ones are here of black cowhide, 16-inch size, $18.50. (Second floor.)

FOR women bent on camping and outdoor vacations, three-piece suits of khaki or blue galatea are truly ideal. Middies, $2; bloomers, $2.50; skirts, buttoning all the way down front and back, to permit of wearing them divided for riding, etc., $4. (Sixth floor.)

WHITE crepe de Chine smocks are as easy to launder as chemises and therefore deserve a place in the vacation wardrobe, $6.50. (Fifth floor.)

Scotch-made golf balls, 35c; $4 a dozen.

Toyo crushable sport hat, $3; band, 65c.

3-pc. camp costume, khaki or dark blue galatea, $8.50. High cut sneakers, $2.25.

HARVARD HONORARY DEGREE FOR EARL READING

DIPLOMAS FOR OVER 800 AND WAR CERTIFICATES FOR 314 AWARDED BY PRES. LOWELL.

The annual Commencement exercises were held at Harvard today. This year's observance, despite the small number of men graduated, possessed all the solemnity of former occasions. The day's program included the bestowal of university and honorary degrees, the annual meeting of the Harvard Alumni Association and the annual election of overseers to the university.

Among the dignitaries who received honorary degrees Earl Reading, Chief Justice of England and Ambassador to the United States, attracted the most attention. He received the degree of LL. D.

John Masefield, the English poet and dramatist, was awarded the degree of doctor of letters. Others were Outram Bangs, the naturalist, given the degree of master of arts; Hennen Jennings, the consulting engineer, master of arts; Edwin Francis Gay, economics expert, doctor of laws, and Professor Barrett Wendell of Harvard, doctor of letters.

Just as many distinguished guests as on other years took part in the University's observance of the day. President Lowell, the fellows and overseers of the university met the invited guests on the college campus and marched to Sanders Theatre, where the customary morning exercises were held and the distribution of academic and honorary degrees was made.

Balloting for the board of overseers was on all day in Massachusetts Hall, while an election of directors for the alumni association was also held.

There are seven vacancies on the Harvard board, caused by the retirement of Augustus E. Wilson, former Governor of Kentucky, Louis A. Frothingham, Owen Wister, the author; Frederick A. Delano, and Thomas W. Lamont, the New York financier; and the death of President Hyde of Bowdoin and Evert J. Wendell of New York.

Five are for full terms of six years; one for two, and one for three years. The nominees for the vacancies follow:

Henry Cabot Lodge, of Nahant.
Class of 1871. Overseer 1911-17.

Paul Revere Frothingham, of Boston.
Class of 1896. Overseer 1904-10.

Ira Nelson Hollis, of Worcester.
Hon. 1899.

George Wigglesworth, of Milton.
Class of 1874. Overseer 1909-15.

Charles Franklin Thwing, of Cleveland, O.
Class of 1876.

Francis Randall Appleton, of New York, N. Y.
Class of 1875. Overseer 1903-09.

Joseph Lee, of Boston.
Class of 1883.

Julian William Mack, of Chicago, Ill.
LL.B. 1887.

William Comper Boyden, of Chicago, Ill.
Class of 1886. Overseer 1911-17.

Charles Allerton Coolidge, of Boston.
Class of 1894.

Benjamin Bowditch Thayer, of New York, N. Y.
Class of 1885.

Minot Simons, of Cleveland, O.
Class of 1894.

James Handasyd Perkins, of New York, N. Y.
Class of 1898.

Henry Jackson, of Boston.
Class of 1886.

WAR CERTIFICATES PRESENTED.

More than 800 degrees were conferred by President Lowell and 314 war certificates presented those who are to enlist in the army or navy.

Among those named as recipients of such certificates were the following men killed in service: Roger Sherman Dix, Jr., Ralph Jefferson Feigl, Ronald Wood Hoskier, James Lalache and Henry Richard Deighton Simpson.

President Wilson's son-in-law, Francis B. Sayre, received a degree of doctor of judicial science from the law school.

The award of bachelor of arts degrees cum laude was as follows:

Bachelor of Arts Summa Cum Laude—Hallowell Davis, Arthur Chew Gilligan, Harry Joshua Leon, Allen Lee Whitman.

Bachelor of Arts Magna Cum Laude—James Waterhouse Angell, John Perry Bellenlin, Edward Bernard Benjamin, Lowell Brentano, Wayne Notley Clugston, Harold Truscott Davis, Ralph Edward Harbold, George Locke Howe, Louis Bertrand Keane, William Preston Palmer, Leslie Miller Swope, Samuel Waldstein.

SALUTATORY BY LEON.

Undergraduate parts were read by James W. Angell of Chicago and Harry J. Leon of Worcester, who gave the Latin salutation.

Angell's subject was the "Growth of American Unity." He said in part:

"Perhaps the most striking feature of the present war has been the growth in almost every country of a fresh and powerful national sentiment.

"The French, torn through many years of disrupting political struggles, have put away their petty quarrels, and are fighting and dying unquestioningly in defence of their glorious mother country.

"The innumerable peoples of the vast British Empire have thrust aside all self-interest, all mutual jealousy, and have taken their heroic position upon the battleline as a single nation.

"The Germans, despite their adherence to ideals which we must consider false, are gathered around their Kaiser and their Fatherland in an almost frantic devotion.

"Throughout all Europe the old jealousies, the old dissensions, the old social distinctions, have been largely forgotten; despite the allurements of an international comity and an international state, men's thoughts are only for their country's honor and their country's flag.

"And as it has been in the United States. Although we entered the war late, although we are very far from experiencing or even understanding its suffering and its desolation, nevertheless our participation is slowly bringing forth among us a new concept of patriotism, and is building up a new structure of unity.

"A far greater sentiment of unity has sprung from the national draft. From every part of the country, from every walk of life, the nation's men are pouring into the army; and the old barriers of class, of wealth, of education, are being swept away and forgotten.

"The spirit of American unity, born in the days of our oppression, has now in the hour of our greatest need arisen in trebled glory.

"The millionaire and the day laborer, the scientist and the farmer, are in a common league against the common enemy."

Six Honorary Degrees Conferred Today by Harvard

MASTER OF ARTS.

Outram Bangs, a naturalist from childhood, with an early zeal unchanged through life, by whose own wide collection of birds and mammals our museum is now enriched.

MASTER OF ARTS.

Hennen Jennings, eminent consulting engineer, whose advice in matters of great emergency is sought from San Francisco to London, from London to Johannesburg.

DOCTOR OF LETTERS.

John Masefield, poet and dramatist, who tells with simple, incisive force stories of sea and land, of sin and death, of peace and war.

DOCTOR OF LAWS.

Edwin Francis Gay, student of economics, who searches the principles in the past, is applying them in the present, and trains men to use them in the future—in each of these arts a master mind.

DOCTOR OF LETTERS.

Barrett Wendell, devoted as a teacher, even steadfast as a friend; a writer on many themes; a seer who beheld the soul of France before it shone forth brighter than ever through the darkness of this war.

DOCTOR OF LAWS.

Rufus Daniel Isaacs, Viscount Reading, Chief Justice of England, Ambassador to the United States, striving to promote among the allies a harmony of action that can and shall win the war.

Alkali In Soap Bad For the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—Advertisement.

WHAT IS YOUR DUTY in the War Savings Stamp Drive?

In this great drive for 1,000,000 pledges undertaken by the women of Massachusetts this month everybody has a duty to perform.

Massachusetts' duty as a whole is to provide $78,000,000 for the U. S. Government by the sale of War Savings Stamps (so far she has bought one-tenth of this).

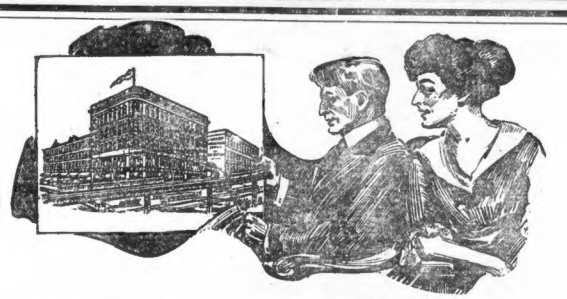
The woman's duty is to get the pledges.

The rich man's duty is to buy a block of $1000 (costing $834 this month) and join the Limit Club.

The average-man's duty is to figure out how much he can save by war-time economy and invest that saving weekly or monthly in War Savings Stamps.

The children's duty is to save their quarters until they have enough to buy War Savings Stamps!

This Is OUR War. War Savings Stamps Help Fight It. They are for EVERYBODY — Man, Woman, Child — Rich or Poor



I Never Realized Before What a Big Store Ferdinand's Is

THE picture gives no idea of the size of Ferdinand's Store. The bigness of the store of the present day is due to the bigness of the bargains and the bigness of the service which has been back of every piece of furniture sold in this store during the past 49 years.

This advertisement will save you money NOW—or just as soon as you come in and select what you need for your home.

The Story of a Woman and a Man

"Why, I had no idea that Ferdinand's store was that large!" exclaimed a woman who had become interested in our store by reading our recent advertisements, as she drove by one evening with her husband.

It is always a surprise to people who visit us for the first time to find that we have seventeen floors, and that on every one of them there is a large stock from which to choose.

"Seventeen floors!" exclaimed a man who was here recently, astonished that there were so many.

"Want to see them?" asked the salesman, preparing to show the visitor every one of them.

"I'll take your word for it," answered the man, not being anxious for all that exercise on a hot day.

We do not ask you to see all our floors this week.

We do ask you to visit those floors that carry the articles mentioned in this advertisement. If you want to stop along the way and look at other things we feel sure that you will enjoy yourself.

We talk about the bigness of the store only because we want to make clear that our stock is large. The smallest purchaser is welcomed just as much as the largest. The service is the same to all. And all are protected by the Ferdinand guarantee.

Dining Room Furniture

This dining room furniture cannot be equalled at the price. Both are made solidly for folks who want their dining furniture to wear. The chair with slip leather seat is only $2.95 and the solid oak table $13.50.

For the house at the beach, or wherever a buffet is needed for which you do not want to pay a big price, this quartered oak buffet is the most satisfactory one we know anything about. You can have it this week for $19.75.

FOOD DIRECTOR HOOVER SOON TO VISIT LONDON

By International News Service.

London, June 20.—The press bureau has announced that Herbert C. Hoover, the American food director, will arrive some time during the next few weeks. Mr. Hoover, the announcement says, will be the guest of the nation.

MRS. BUSCH RELEASED BY U. S. AUTHORITIES

Jacksonville, Fla., June 20.—Advices from Key West say Mrs. Adolphus Busch, widow of the St. Louis brewer, detained there for examination by federal authorities on her return from a long stay in Germany, has been released and will leave at once for St. Louis.

BANKER KAHN MAY BE BRITISH SUBJECT

By International News Service.

London, June 20.—It is understood here that Otto Kahn is seriously considering becoming a British subject.

Otto Kahn, the New York banker, who is now in Spain, where negotiations between him and Premier Maura and other Spanish statesmen are reported to have paved the way for important improvements in the Spanish-American financial relations, and where he was received by King Alfonso in a long audience, was born in Germany and became an American citizen last year. Prior to coming to America he spent many years in England.

Grandmother's way of rubbing cake soap on to fine fabrics was ruinous.

Try the modern way—just dipping delicate things up and down in pure Lux suds. It keeps them like new.

As antiquated as Hoop Skirts

Are you still keeping on with the old-fashioned rub, rub, rub?

THE Princess Nausicaa and her maidens, poor dears, how their backs used to ache when they washed the clothes at the river.

What if she was the daughter of the King of Phaecia, as the classical story goes, the Princess Nausicaa had to take her linens to the river herself and pound the dirt out with stones until she could have screamed from the pain in her regal little back. It was hard on the royal linens, too—the pounding of the rocks soon wore them out. But what else could a poor Princess do—she must have clean clothes, and that was the only way she knew to get them clean.

Grandmother's method is dead as a door nail

Then came our grandmothers.

True, they had soap—but they still had to rub, rub, rub their clothes. First they rubbed in the soap—then they rubbed it out again against hard wash-boards. It ruined fine fabrics—so they wore only sturdy, heavy materials, except on high state occasions. It was hard, back-breaking work. So those that could afford it let servants launder even their fine things.

The modern way—no rubbing

And now comes the modern girl. How blithely she dons frail Georgette waists and chiffons—silk stockings and even silk underwear for every day.

She has learned the modern way—the Lux way—of washing delicate fabrics without rubbing, without yellowing or dimming their color! She wears her finest things often, and keeps them new with Lux.

With the delicate Lux flakes you can cleanse your sheerest, your silkiest, your most princessly garments without theold-time princessly backache. You can have all your loveliest silks, your softest woolens, your finest laces come out of the wash with all the beauty of absolutely new things.

Just toss the Lux flakes into hot water and whip up the richest lather you ever saw. If you are doing silks or colored fabrics, add cold water until lukewarm. Then dip the garment up and down in the rich suds till the dirt has vanished.

Lux harms nothing that clear water alone will not injure.

Try it and know for yourself why grandmother's method of laundering fine things is as passé—as dead and gone—as Nausicaa's rocks.

If you have given up hoop skirts—give up that old-fashioned rub, rub, rub.

Use Lux and be happy. Get it at grocers, druggists or department stores—Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

To wash silk blouses

Whisk a tablespoonful of Lux into a thick lather in half a basinful of boiling or very hot water. Add cold water till lukewarm. Dip your blouse through the foamy lather many times. Squeeze the suds through it—do not rub. Rinse in three waters of the same temperature as the water in which you washed it. Squeeze the water out—do not wring. Dry in the shade. When nearly dry press with a warm iron—never a hot one. Georgette Crepe blouses should be gently pulled into shape as they dry and also should be shaped as they are ironed.

DOUBLE GUARD ABOUT ALIEN CAMP

More Vigilant Precautions Are Being Taken Since Death of Lieut. Bottoms

By WILLIAM FLYNN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, June 19.—Following the death of First Lieutenant John A. Bottoms of the Fifty-Ninth Infantry, who was electrocuted while attempting to learn what caused the sudden extinguishing of the lights surrounding the enemy alien stockade at Bolton, the guard over the interned German sailors working on the army farms was doubled today.

Twenty men from various companies in the depot brigade were transferred to do guard duty at the stockade and from now on a closer watch is to be kept upon the German prisoners both night and day. As a result of this transfer there will be approximately one guard to every two Germans in the stockade and the chances of their escape or doing any damage will be greatly lessened. The report of the board appointed to investigate the death of Lieutenant Bottoms is expected to be made within a day or so.

ALIENS ON GUARD.

Incidentally the members of the enemy alien company in the depot brigade are now taking their turn at guard duty along with the other companies. The men in this company have pledged their loyalty to the United States and are being retained in the national army for domestic service only. The majority of them are Austrians and Turks but none of them will ever be sent over seas to fight against their kin.

The board named by the President to determine what shall be done with the so-called conscientious objectors at this cantonment has arrived and was scheduled to begin the individual examination of this class of draftees today. The board consists of Major Richard C. Stoddard of the Judge Advocate-General's department at Washington, Judge Julian W. Mack of the United States District Court at Chicago, and Dean H. F. Stone of the Columbia University Law School.

The members of the board have already examined conscientious objectors at two other army cantonments and as a result of their interrogations many of these draftees who were found to be shamming in an attempt to escape military duty were tried and received sentences ranging from eighteen months to twenty years.

FIRST DAILY PAPER.

The first daily camp newspaper has made its appearance. It is called the "12th Company Tribune" and is published under the direction of Lieutenant James H. Shortell of Salem, commander of the 12th Company of the Depot Brigade. The Tribune is edited by Company Clerk Stuart C. Maguire of Danvers, a former newspaper man, who was a member of the Boston AMERICAN staff before he was drafted.

The "12th Company Tribune" is printed on a typewriter and carbon copies are distributed to the men in the third battalion of the depot brigade. Each day's issue contains a breezy account of events and incidents in the battalion and the paper has made a decided hit with the officers and men. The news is gathered by soldier reporters in each of the companies and the editorial staff is looking forward to the time when they can purchase a press and make the "Tribune" an official regimental organ.

ARLINGTON TO SEND DRAFTEES TO AYER

The draft board for State Division 38, comprising Arlington and Winchester, has called two groups of draftees for entrainment to Camp Devens, Ayer, and Camp Dix, N. J., during the coming week. Two draftees will go to Ayer next Monday morning, and four more will leave for Camp Dix the following Thursday.

EDITORIAL.

There are many persons who have gone to considerable expense to, make things pleasant for the soldiers at Camp Devens and for the sailors, radio students and members of other branches of the navy stationed in and about Boston, and they are deserving of much credit. There are many others, however, who have never lifted a finger to do anything for anyone in the service and now is a good time for them to start in.

The soldiers and sailors who wear the uniform of Uncle Sam are not babies and do not expect to be coddled and petted. They are real men, fighting men, the sort of men we must depend upon to save this country from the oppression of the Hun but at the same time they are human beings. They appreciate everything that is done for them and those who have not been called upon to fight cannot do too much for those who have.

RECEIVING SHIP INSPECTED BY ADMIRAL

Pay Day Deferred Because of Work of Moving to New Quarters

By S. HARRY FERRIS.

Aboard the Receiving Ship at Boston, June 20.—Rear Admiral Albert S. Ross visited the ship. He was received at the gangplank by Commander W. A. Edgar and staff, with the band playing on the main deck.

The admiral, accompanied by his naval aide and Lieutenant P. G. Carlton, the ship's executive officer, made a complete inspection of the Commonwealth and found everything shipshape and in first-class condition.

He showed special interest in the Commissary School, and spent considerable time looking over the equipment and gaining information regarding the methods employed. The school, under Chief Commissary Steward W. S. Rooney, has been brought to a high state of efficiency. It is the only one in the country where all branches of commissary work are taught.

Today, according to official schedule, should have been pay-day on the ship, and it was thought, since Paymaster Howe and his force of yeomen are now actually domiciled on the Commonwealth and it is no longer necessary to transfer funds from the Navy Yard, that the money envelopes would be forthcoming promptly on time.

The task of moving to new quarters, however, upset the work of the department to such an extent that it was found impossible to get the official lists, that must be posted twenty-four hours in advance of paying-off, out on time. The funds will probably be forthcoming in season for the Tars to be provided with pocket money for their forty-eight hours of liberty leave covering Saturday and Sunday.

LYNN DOCTOR HELD IN QUESTIONNAIRE CASE

Dr. Perez Walshel of Summer street, Lynn, who was taken into custody by the Federal authorities on the charge of falsifying in his questionnaire relative to his age, was held in $500 when arraigned before United States Commissioner Hayes.

Dr. Walshel pleaded not guilty and was allowed to go on his personal recognizance. The case was continued to June 25.

ACTRESS ASKS $100,000 FOR LOST AFFECTIONS

New York, June 20.—Suit for $100,000 has been started in the Supreme Court against Muriel Vinson by Mrs. Mabel Dunn, known to the stage as Mabel Jonnson, of the vaudeville team of Hayes and Johnson. Mrs. Dunn claims that Miss Vinson has alienated the affections of her husband, William R. Dunn, a motion picture actor, to whom she was married on September 5, 1913, at Fort Lee, N. J.

PREPARE TO ARM MEN AS FAST AS DRAFTED

Ordnance Department Getting New Schedule of Rifle Delivery Ready

By International News Service.

Washington, June 20.—In the belief that Congress will order an army of at least 4,000,000 by the end of the year, the ordnance department has prepared new rifle delivery schedules which will guarantee the arming of the new men as soon as they reach the training camps.

In addition, provision will be made for the arming of at least 1,000,000 members of home guard units. Already about 10,000 rifles of the Ross type, formerly used by the Canadians, and an equal number from the 300,000 rifles manufactured by the Russian government, and owned now by the United States have been allotted the New York State troops.

The home guards of a number of states have made requisition of the government for rifles and have asked that they be given the old Krags, or the Russian rifles. Some army experts hold that present capacity of American fighting plants permits of giving the home guards riot guns.

The experts contend that it would not be wise to distribute high velocity guns to men who have had little training and for whom there is no means now of giving instruction in the use of rifles. They point out that the home guards are organized for the purpose of guarding centres against rioters and that a gun of the sawed-off type is by far the best weapon in street fighting. More than 10,000 guns of this description have been sent to General Pershing to be used by troops on guard at prison camps.

The riot gun will sweep an area of about three feet and nine inches wide. Each shell has nine heavy slugs, and because of their low velocity they are much more effective in halting charging men than the steel jacketed, high velocity rifle bullets.

FAMOUS JAZZ BAND TO ENTERTAIN AT I CO. BALL

I Company is marching steadily forward towards successfully filling its empty company fund.

The latest best news from the front is that in addition to its own band, it will have a famous collection of jazz players now in town to dispense music at its military Jazz ball at the Boston Arena, Saturday evening, June 29.

Indications are that accompanying this Jazz band will be a couple of Broadway stars now playing here. Sergeant Eddie Mack has also enlisted the services of all the stellar vaudeville acts in town for the ball.

Arrangements have been practically completed to have over 100 charmingly pretty girls sell tickets for the ball in the business district the first of the week. Meantime several of "Boston's Own," who have been able to get leave, are in town disposing of the tickets.

URGES BIG ARMY OF AMERICAN WOMEN

British Leader of Auxiliary Corps Prepared to Train Recruits Here

By WILL J. BUTLER.

London, June 20.—Strongly advocating a great American army of women, similar to the 40,000 "Waach" (women's auxiliary army corps), Mrs. H. E. Leach, the executive head of the British organization, in an authoritative interview to the International News Service, offered to go to America to organize such a body for war work.

Mrs. Leach, who had the co-operation of Queen Marr in organizing the "Waach," said:

"I learn that American women are now contemplating such an army and it is only just that they should profit from the mistakes of the British women early in the war and organize efficiently.

"I am willing to go to the United States and help for several weeks until the organization is put on a smooth-running basis.

"The first contingent of more than 100 'Waach' will go in about three weeks to the American army in France to relieve American soldiers who have been acting as orderlies, chauffeurs and clerks for duty in the trenches. More will go later. The Americans are smarting under desk jobs and are eager to get into the trenches."

Mrs. Leach, the wife of a brigadier general, gave up her mansion and society early in the war to teach the "Waach" from the ground up how to scrub pans and pots and clean floors. Her office is decorated with American recruiting posters and flags.

"I love America and I think President Wilson is the greatest man in the world," she exclaimed. "We feel that the power across the sea entered the war at the right moment. In the British food crisis America was quick to ration herself and rush food across the Atlantic. When the German offensive came America was quick to pour tens of thousands of reserves across the sea."

KICKS DOG AND STRIKES GUARDSMAN; FINED $25

When Henry Miller, thirty-two, a steward on a steamship at the Leyland docks, boarded his ship, he kicked a Boston terrier, the mascot of the provisional company guarding the waterfront.

"If you kick that dog again, there'll be more to it," was the warning of Corporal William Taylor, one of the guards.

Miller whirled about and struck Taylor.

Today in the East Boston Court Judge Murley fined Miller $25, which was paid. Miller said that he was intoxicated.

SHIPPERS MUST SPEED UP DUMPING OF COAL

Washington, June 20.—Coal must be dumped promptly, in order to release cars for further movement, according to a notice served today on the Tidewater Coal Exchange by the fuel administration. The attention of the fuel administration has been called to the practice of shippers in delaying dumping in order to mix the coal for bunkering, so as to avail themselves of the extra price allowed for foreign bunkering.

East Boston Boy Badly Hurt

Suffering from a possible fracture of the skull, seven-year-old Harry Noble of No. 144 Putnam street, East Boston, was found unconscious on Bennington street today. It is believed by the police that he was riding on the back of a wagon and fell. He was taken to the East Boston Relief Hospital.

MILLION SAVERS PROMISED IN BAY STATE

Full Quota Indicated in War Stamp Sales, Says Director Herrick

Enlistments in the Army of Thrift are as many in the cities and towns of Massachusetts that Robert F. Herrick, State Director of War Savings, declared that he felt justified in saying that the Bay State will undoubtedly enlist its full quota of 1,000,000 savers.

"But 1,000,000 is merely the minimum," Mr. Herrick explained, "and it is not the habit of Massachusetts to be satisfied with a minimum. The real object of the War Savings Stamp drive, here and elsewhere throughout the country, is to enlist the entire population in the Army of Savers."

The War Savings Stamp committee has issued a statement declaring that the business men of Boston are not responding as it was expected they would to the request for pledges.

Worcester County again forged to the front in the returns from the army of women canvassers who are working to secure a million pledges before National War Savings Day, June 28.

The city of Worcester raised its total pledges of stamps to $1,895, and the county proportionately saw that the returns to noon show pledges for all the communities in the county of $2,509 representing $854,000.

The town of Sturbridge went over its quota and others that are rapidly approaching it are Hardwick, Blackstone and Lunenburg.

In Hampshire County, Mrs. Marion Porter, woman chairman of Cummington, reported going over at the end of her four days' drive with 210 pledges.

Haydenville, on per capita stamps sales for May, leads in the county at the rate of $5.52.

In Plymouth County they are hard at work canvassing and reporting actively and are contesting the place for leadership with Worcester.

Abington reports 1,100 pledges on the quota of 1,550.

Kingston reports 460 on a quota of 700.

Plymouth has about 50 per cent. of its quota of 3,350.

West Bridgewater reports 291 out of 750. A three-day campaign does not start until the 26th. The county, up to Tuesday night, had 32,000 pledges.

Medfield went over the top on Tuesday with 475 pledges against a quota of 400.

Marblehead reports 1,410 on a quota of 2,100, with the canvass still in progress. The committee includes 168 workers, each worker covering ten houses a day.

Two large cities in Bristol County both went over their quotas by 50 per cent.

In New Bedford already 30,000 pledges have been secured with the mills yet to be heard from.

What Kind of Clothes Do You Wear?

YOU can find plenty of poor stuff without looking very far; an easy way to waste money.

But good clothes have to cost enough to be good; the main thing for you is to be sure they're as good as they cost.

Hart Schaffner & Marx Clothes Are Better Than They Cost

When we say "better than they cost" we mean your price, not the makers; we mean you'll get more value for your money in these clothes than in any others. They're made that way—to serve, not merely to sell.

REFUSES MANSLAUGHTER WARRANT FOR MOTORMAN

Clerk William C. Maguire of the East Boston Court declined today to issue a warrant for the arrest, on a charge of manslaughter, of Thomas J. Sullivan, who lives at No. 12 Second street, Cambridge, and was motorman of the inbound Orient Heights car which, on June 13, struck Mrs. Rose Silva, sixty, of No. 149 Maverick street, inflicting fatal injuries.

FREEDOM'S LAST FOE IS THE HUN, SAYS HOUSTON

"There Must Be Another Fourth of July for the World," Secretary Declares

By International News Service.

Dubuque, Ia., June 20.—"There must be another Fourth of July for all the world, and when we this time set the world free from Germany, its independence will not again be seriously menaced, for Germany is freedom's last foe."

Thus characterizing the enmity of the Pan-German menace, Secretary of Agriculture David F. Houston, addressing Iowa bankers at the State convention here today, said that the shortest way to the end of the war was through it.

Describing the system of international robbery which has resulted in the creation of the Germanic empire, Secretary Houston depicted Prussia as the spirit of medievalism, "stupidly strutting before the eyes of men and of God."

"We are aligned with the free forces of the world and have back of us the conscience of civilization," he continued. "I agree with the Archbishop of York that there must be some power that can change the hearts of the German people, which alone can make them fit associates for free and self-governing peoples.

"This German plan of world empire will collapse as have other similar plans. It is not the first time it has been tried. The Persians tried it and were halted at Marathon and at Salamis. Alexander attempted it and did not even get back home. Rome sought it and was finally overwhelmed.

"Napoleon played for the same stake and ended his days at St. Helena. The Kaiser will learn his lesson."

Beverly Mayor to Run Again

Beverly, June 20.—Mayor James McPherson, serving his second year as chief executive of this municipality, has announced his candidacy for re-election.

ALIEN FEMALES ARE SLOW TO REGISTER

United States Marshal John J. Mitchell asserts that the registration of German alien females in this city so far is very small in comparison to the large number of these women who are known to come within the scope of President Wilson's proclamation.

Sixty were registered at the City police stations during the third day of the allotted week. More than 1,100 have still to register, according to estimated figures of the authorities.

The registration by stations was as follows: Joy street, four; East Dedham street, ten; Athens street, four; East Boston, three; Dudley street, six; Roxbury Crossing, five; Adams street, one; City Point, two; Jamaica Plain, twelve; City Square one; Back Bay, six; Roslindale, six.

Marshal Mitchell declares that all German alien females who fail to comply with the law relative to registering will be interned for the remainder of the war.

Registrants in many of the Massachusetts cities and towns report a laxness on the part of many women.

Women cannot register at the United States marshal's office. This must be done at the police station in the district in which they live.

The registration of German alien females in Brookline is considered to average as well as that of the German alien males.

The registration in Boston, Medford and other cities so far is far below expectations. The time expires next Wednesday, June 26.

Persons who have reason to believe that any German alien female is wilfully refusing to register should report this fact to the police of the city or the town in which such alien lives or to United States Marshal Mitchell.

Among the cities and towns which have exceeded the registration figures of German alien females are Taunton, Norwood, Southbridge, Falmouth and Salem.

FAIRBANKS LEAVES AN ESTATE OF $2,150,000

Indianapolis, June 20.—The will of Charles Warren Fairbanks, admitted to probate here, disposed of an estate of $2,000,000 in real estate and $150,000 personal property. The beneficiaries are three sons, Frank Herrick Fairbanks, Pasadena, Cal.; Warren Fairbanks, Chicago, and Captain Richard Fairbanks, who arrived from France last night, and one daughter, Mrs. John W. Timmons, of Indianapolis. A large portion of the estate is bequeathed to charitable, religious and educational institutions.

PIG IRON SHORTAGE WORRIES MUNITIONS MEN

Washington, June 20.—An estimated shortage of 4,000,000 tons of pig iron is giving serious concern to officials in charge of munitions production. It was learned today. The shortage, which amounted a month ago to about 2,500,000 tons, has steadily increased, and unless a way is found to increase production, the steel industry may be seriously hampered. The shortage of coke is said to be one of the most important factors in the falling output of pig iron.

FILM STAR WILL TELL HER WAR EXPERIENCES

Dorothy Gish Is Here to Meet "Hearts of the World" Audiences

By FRED J. McISAAC.

Dorothy Gish came to our town yesterday.

Miss Gish plays the Little Disturber in "Hearts of the World" the Griffith film. She visited Boston with her mother to appear at the Majestic Theatre and tell the folks who were looking at the picture something about her experiences while it was being made.

I took advantage of my chance as a newspaper man to call upon the pair at their apartment in a nearby hotel. Film stars are rare visitors to Boston and should be carefully inspected whenever opportunity offers.

Miss Dorothy Gish, not to be confused with her older sister Lillian, who plays tragic roles in a bright and cheerful little person, with brown hair, a merry smile and a complete lack of any feeling of personal importance.

Mrs. Gish, mother of the two film stars, is just a silvered copy of her daughter Dorothy. Both had a way of making the interviewer feel as though she had known them a long time. Tears ago the mother was on the stage herself. Now she travels with her girls and lives for them.

CROSSED WITH PERSHING.

"I had the distinction of crossing to Europe with General Pershing," said Miss Dorothy. "Mother and Lillian went abroad first and then Mr. Griffith found a part in the picture which he thought I could fill, so he sent for me.

"The general is the handsomest thing you ever saw. He is tall and straight and has the most beautiful eyes that twinkle all the time. I didn't meet him until two days before the ship reached the other side because I thought he wouldn't want to be bothered with young girls and all the women on board were busy trying to get acquainted with him, anyway.

"When I did meet him the general said, 'What have you been avoiding me all the voyage for?' Did you think I was an ogre?'

"'No, sir,' I replied, 'I just thought you wouldn't want to meet a little actress when there were so many other people on board.'

"'You are a good actress,' declared the general. 'Why, I saw you lots of times down in Mexico when they gave picture shows to amuse the boys. I never thought I would have the privilege of meeting you in the flesh.'

"That's the way he talked. He certainly does know how to talk to a girl.

"Did you see any submarines?"

"No."

"How long were you in France?"

"Four months all together. Part of the time was spent right behind the firing line. We were ten miles back of the actual front, and they said we were out of range of the guns, but it was never-ending all the same, for the thunder of the cannon was almost continuous.

IN SEVEN AIR RAIDS.

"We were not actually under fire until we went to London. We were in seven air raids. One afternoon in broad daylight a flock of eighteen German airplanes came right up the Thames flying so low you could make out the crosses on their planes. They evidently ran out of bombs and were just making photographs, for they circled the Houses of Parliament and returned down the Thames. Our window in the Hotel Savoy looked out on the river and we saw the whole thing. Of course the British aircraft guns kept firing at them but they all got away.

"Another time they dropped bombs all around us. One dropped in the courtyard of the Hotel Cecil, now military headquarters, but didn't explode. Another landed in Charing Cross. One hit the Little Theatre and destroyed it and several fell on the embankment. We were scared to death.

"Mother lost thirty-five pounds and was so nervous she was as bad as a shell shock victim.

"I have gained twenty pounds back," added Mrs. Gish. "But its lucky we came home when we did or there wouldn't have been any of me left. It's terrible to stay in your room expecting a bomb to come through the ceiling and destroy you at any minute."

"I am sure I don't know what I shall say to the audience at the theatre," declared Miss Gish.

"Just tell them what you have been telling me," I suggested.

DOROTHY GISH, film star, who is here to describe her experiences in the production of "Hearts of the World," now playing at the Majestic Theatre

New Milford Quota Called.

Milford, June 20.—The selective draft board from Division 18 has received orders to send twelve men to Camp Devens next Monday and thirty-five men to Camp Dix in Wrightstown, N. J., the following Wednesday. This is one of the largest details yet sent away by the local board.

20,000,000 Wanted to Silently Curse the Kaiser

Here is a new job. Wish harm to the Kaiser!

They say if you wish a thing hard enough, it's done.

Here, then, is a new way to win the war.

Dr. Sheldon Leavitt, president of the National Optimistic League, and not only that, but a "mental scientist" and "holy emotionalist" as well, has undertaken the job of organizing a corps of 20,000,000 optimists to curse out the Kaiser and Germany.

Twice a day, simultaneously, the 20,000,000 will devote a brief period to silent hate. They will concentrate intellectually, grit their teeth, look stern, stamp their feet and wish the Germans out of existence.

"I call down upon the German government disaster, catastrophe, ruin, disease, pestilence, annihilation and the plague," is the ritual. Nothing is said about mosquitoes.

Will it work? There are plenty of Boston people who have been trying it for a long time.

But perhaps they didn't concentrate sufficiently.

Awarded $2,175 for Injuries.

Fitchburg, June 20.—A jury in the Superior Court returned a verdict of $2,175 in favor of Mrs. Ellen McCormick, sixty-six, in her suit against the city of Fitchburg. She sued to recover for injuries alleged to have been caused by a defect in a public highway.

MAN FOUND DEAD AFTER ONE NIGHT ON NEW JOB

Following his employment of but a single night as cashier at a chain lunch store on School street, Josiah Fitz, sixty-one years old, of No. 1098 Washington street, South End, was found dead in a toilet room at No. 3 School street, early today. The discovery was made by Manager William S. Billings of the lunch concern upon his arrival at his place of business. The Relief Hospital was notified. When the ambulance arrived Fitz was pronounced dead. Medical Examiner George B. Magrath was notified.

A Wartime Recipe for Gray Hair

Gray, streaked or faded hair can be immediately made black, brown or light brown, whichever shade you desire, by the use of the following remedy that you can make at home:

Merely get a small box of Orlex powder at any drug store. It costs very little and no extras to buy. Dissolve it in water and comb it through the hair. Full directions for mixing and use come in each box.

You need not hesitate to use Orlex, as a $100.00 gold bond comes in each box guaranteeing the user that Orlex powder does not contain silver, lead, zinc, sulphur, mercury, aniline, coaltar products or their derivatives.

It does not rub off, is not sticky or gummy and leaves the hair fluffy. It will make a gray haired person look twenty years younger.—Advertisement.

The Power Behind Strong, Keen, Red-Blooded Americans

"To help make strong, keen, red-blooded Americans there is nothing in my experience which I have found so valuable as organic iron—Nuxated Iron," says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital. Nuxated Iron often increases the strength and endurance of weak, nervous, run-down people in two weeks' time. It is now being used by over three million people annually, including such men as Hon. Leslie M. Shaw, former secretary of the Treasury, and ex-Governor of Iowa; former United States Senator Richard Rolland Kenney of Delaware, of present Major of the U. S. Army; General John L. Clem (Retired), the drummer boy of Shiloh, who was sergeant in the U. S. Army when only 13 years of age; also United States Judge G. W. Atkinson of the Court of Claims of Washington and others. Worried, run-down people should not fail to take Nuxated Iron.

Speed—Speed—Speed!

—60 minutes more of highest efficiency.

Take advantage of it. You owe it to yourself and your country to make every minute count.

Use your car—passenger or commercial—to the limit.

Samuel P. Colt, president of the United States Rubber Company, helped awaken the country to the economic value of the automobile last fall. He said:

"Everything on wheels must be used and mobilized.

"The automobile is second to the railroads as an adjunct and supplementary to them in collecting and distributing merchandise.

"Owners should use their cars, both passenger and commercial, more and more to relieve the pressure on the nation's railroads and merchant's delivery service."

Your car is in the front rank of time-savers.

Make the most of it by using the tires that will extend its usefulness to the utmost.

Use good tires—United States Tires.

They last longest and carry you farthest at least cost.

There is a United States Tire for every car or truck—to guarantee uninterrupted service and greatest economy.

Stallings Declares Athletics Leader Talking Through His Hat in Perry Case

Philadelphia, June 20.—If Ban Johnson, Connie Mack or anybody else says that Scott Perry was a free agent when the Athletics obtained him from the Atlanta club he is talking through his hat," So hotly stated Manager Stallings of the Braves today.

"We had to agree to give the Atlanta club $ 9 for the chance to try out Perry, while Scudder, who he drove up in Chicago we did not feel like paying that $500.

"We put the matter up to the commissioner and that body ordered us to pay Atlanta what we did. But before we paid over that new we received word from the commission that Perry would be a free agent and would revert to us on the event of his refusing to the game.

So when Connie Mack says Perry was a free agent when the Athletics obtained him he is talking through his hat. I have more than $ 9 in the shop, and he was with Perry all season.

MANY MEN SEEK POSITIONS ON N. E. FARMS

More Than 1,000 Applied at Labor Office of American in Single Day

By THOMAS F. PHELAN,
United States Farm Labor Agent.

More than 1,000 unemployed men called at the office of the United States Employment Service, where the AMERICAN labor office is quartered, last Tuesday, according to the officials in charge, who completed their tabulation today.

This is the largest number of applicants for employment there since the place was opened. Of this number 250 were signed up for positions, many for farmhands and milkers.

The publicity given the institution too, calls attention to the necessity of storing potatoes for future use to assist Uncle Sam in winning the war. She says:

"When the white potato became a common article of food in Ireland, scurvy, which had become a national curse, began to disappear. The potato wrought the cure. The Irish potato is now striving to do its utmost to be a wheat-saver. Millions of people with war gardens have limited storage space, a not inconsiderable number requiring to buy apartments for the Winter. Many of these are growing potatoes. Dry them, commandeer, a year's supply, and what is beyond your needs sell or give away. Not one potato should be wasted." The National War Garden Commission, Washington, will send you a free drying circular on receipt of a two-cent stamp to cover postage.

104 FITCHBURG DRAFTEES ASSIGNED TO CAMP DIX

Fitchburg, June 20.—Thirty-four registrants have been ordered by the Exemption Board to report at the armory, Sunday, to be inducted into the national army. They will go to Camp Devens Monday. Another quota of 104 has been directed to report Tuesday night for preliminary instructions for the trip to Camp Dix, Wednesday.

THIRTY MILLION TONS SOFT COAL COMING HERE

New England to Get Enough Fuel to Keep Industries Going, Says Storrow

New England is back on the Federal schedule, which contemplates a delivery of 30,000,000 tons of soft coal during the year beginning April 1, according to an announcement made last night by James J. Storrow, Federal Fuel Administrator for New England, following his visit to Washington.

"We are already a million and one-half tons behind on this program," said Storrow, "but the National Fuel Administration this week has issued orders to the New England roads on to this program and keep it there."

"There must be no let-up, Storrow declared, in the conservation program. It is up to the manufacturer and the householder to see," he said, "to get on the job and save fuel.

Storrow accompanied by the Fuel Administrators of the other New England States, went to Washington last week to put the New England coal situation before the United States Fuel Administrator, Dr. Harry A. Garfield, in an effort to avert the threatened collapse of New England's industries through the falling off of all-rail shipments of soft coal into New England. Storrow's statement in part:

"It's up hill to move coal to New England, and will be as long as the war continues.

"It is always up a hill a little, but in pre-war times when the weather was hot and the coal market dull, cash generally brought our Winter's supply, and when that did not come it a small premium of 20 or 30 cents generally did the trick.

"Today everybody in the nearby States of Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey and Delaware is jingling his cash, but no premium is allowable because the President wisely has fixed one price for all.

"So far as our other source of supply is concerned, namely, West Virginia, that coal moves up here by water, and we have been very short of ships.

"An adequate coal supply for New England is not merely a matter of New England's concern. It is a matter of national concern.

"As nearly as I can estimate fully 75 per cent. of the factories of New England are carrying on war work, which constitutes an essential and integral part of the equipment needed to defeat the Germans.

Wanderlust of Workers Holds Back War

Munition Makers Lessen Output by Travelling Around to See New Places

An ordnance official of our government whose duty it is to promote the speeding up of munition making has asked the AMERICAN to aid his work in a particular direction.

This official says:

A spirit of unease and unrest is pervading the factories in this district engaged in government work. Men will secure a position in a plant doing government work, will stay there a while, anywhere from a week to a longer period, become broken in and suddenly after a payday will disappear for no apparent reason other than a desire to try out the work in a new place. Each week nearly as many men will leave as are hired. This, of course, results in a reduction in production, as the new men have to be broken in to the class of work. The wages, the hours and the working conditions in all plants in this district are comparatively the same, so that it is not a question of wages which causes the shifting of labor.

The truth of the situation is that these men, who are receiving very high wages, desire to see the country, and so they shift about. This shifting about causes a dislocation of industry and greatly impairs the output of munitions. The AMERICAN very much doubts whether the workmen quite realize to what extent it impairs production. Each man probably thinks that he is the only one who has the wanderlust, and that he counts in his individual capacity for so very little that it does not make any difference whether he stays at his work or wanders away to another factory. It is very much like the attitude of the man who does not vote on election day. He thinks his vote would not count among the hundreds of thousands of votes which will be cast. But when a great many men get to thinking that their votes would not count, the sum of the missing votes does count very materially. So it is with the workmen who shift about. They must realize that they are just as important in this terrible struggle as their brothers, cousins and fellow-citizens who are risking their lives and giving their lives and limbs to the cause in the trenches.

American labor must be efficient. Nothing else can be tolerated. It will probably never be necessary to conscript labor, but if it ever becomes necessary, the American people will not hesitate not only to approve the government's doing it, but to insist upon the government's doing it.

This newspaper has never sympathised with the outcry which the employers make against high wages and against the alleged disposition of the workmen to be slackers. All the American workmen need is to understand the situation and they will do their part.

While the Boys Are in France You Must Buy War Stamps

Copyright, 1918, by the Star Company

While the war continues it must be paid for.

Victory is worth any price that can be paid for it.

Losing the war is unthinkable, of course. It will not be lost.

But speedy victory depends upon the co-operation of every American.

The people have cheerfully subscribed and over-subscribed for the last Liberty Bond issue.

They have given all that was asked by the Red Cross—all and more—and will be ready to give again as soon as there is need for more money.

But they must give steadily and regularly.

And the best way to do this is to buy War Thrift Stamps or War Savings Stamps.

If every one buys all the Thrift Stamps he or she can there will be a steady and a heavy flow of currency into the nation's war chest.

The Government needs your money now.

It needs it to feed and clothe and arm the men who are nobly fighting for victory in France.

It needs it to supply them with ships to cross the ocean.

THE WIFE AND THE BANKROLL

Mr. Married Man, what does your wife know about your financial affairs?

Have you ever taken her into your complete confidence and shown her what your exact condition is?

Or do you lie to her when she asks you for definite information and constantly tell her how hard pressed you are for money, when, as a matter of fact, you have nothing to worry about financially?

The chances are that you are like the majority of men in this respect, with the result that your wife believes you implicitly and is in a state of nervous collapse most of the time worrying about what is to happen when you are too old to work as you do now.

Now this is not giving the little wife a square deal, this unnecessary worry.

The right sort of a wife will not be extravagant and squander money just because she knows you have a snug little accumulation.

To feel happy and secure in the thought that the future is provided for, or that you have made a good start toward this commendable goal, is due the faithful companion of your joys and sorrows.

Give that best friend—your wife—a square deal.

GARRETT P. SERVISS' ARTICLE

Humbugs on Boston Common Still Trying to Convince Us That the Earth Is Flat, Despite Scientific Proof to the Contrary—Deceptive Methods Puzzle Even Well Educated Listeners

By Garrett P. Serviss

ON Boston Common, that interesting relic of the Puritan community of land ownership, a "Zetetic Astronomer" has lately been mounting the bunting to preach the doctrine of the flatness of the earth, and according to a letter from a gentleman of Brookline, who has not only heard him but wrestled with him in argument, this lay preacher of scientific heresy has been able to muddle the heads of very intelligent listeners to such a degree that, although their belief remains unshaken in the rotundity of the earth, they find themselves unable to parry the blows that are dealt to orthodox science, and so they are looking for an ally.

Strange Cult

As I know by experience, some of them write letters that are like bombs, though filled only with wind. For example, take those who aver that the Panama Canal is a practical demonstration of the flatness of the earth, because, forsooth, the engineers worked to a base level! In trying to maintain this proposition they make statements that a high school boy would laugh at.

So far from being an object lesson to prove the flatness of the earth, the Panama Canal is an object lesson of an exactly opposite kind. This is shown by the simple terms of a definition of levelling given by a great practical engineer, which anybody may read with illumination:

"Levelling is the art of determining the relative heights of points on the surface of the ground as referred to a hypothetical surface which cuts the direction of gravity." (I. e. the plumbline), "everywhere at right angles. When a line of instrumental levels is begun at sea-level" (the case at Panama), "a series of heights is determined corresponding to what would be found by perpendicular measurements upward from the surface of water communicating freely with the sea in underground channels. Thus the line traced indicates a hypothetical prolongation of the surface of the sea inland, which is everywhere conformable to the earth's curvature."

It is because the surface of the canal corresponds in curvature with the surface of the globe in that part of the earth where it lies that its waters remain at rest, or are what is popularly called "level." By referring the observation to fixed celestial objects it can be proved that the plumbline at each end of the canal inclines toward that at the other end at just such an angle as would correspond with the inclination to one another of the two radii of a globe 8,000 miles in diameter, if those radii cut the globe's surface at a distance apart equal to the straight line of the canal.

Since here is an opportunity for pettifogging, it may be well to say, by way of precaution, that the precise direction of the plumbline in different places differs slightly from its direction, as calculated on the hypothesis of a perfectly spherical and homogeneous earth, but all these things are known to science, and were discovered by science.

Some Real Figures

The Boston Common man, it seems, has been silencing objectors by asserting that from Blue Hill, about eleven miles south of Boston, the base of the Cape Ann lighthouse is visible (with a telescope, I suppose he means), right down to the water's edge, although that should not be the case with a round earth. Whether this is so or not, I do not know. The way to settle the question would be to try the experiment.

Blue Hill is less than forty miles in an airline from Cape Ann. The mean curvature of the earth amounts to about eight inches in a mile, and the drop increases as the square of the distance, so that at forty miles it would be about 1,066 feet. If it were not for the refraction of the air, Blue Hill then would have to be over 1,000 feet high to enable the line of sight from its summit to hit the horizon at a distance of forty miles. But refraction would greatly reduce the needed height.

Just at the horizon refraction often exceeds half a degree, as is shown by the sun apparently resting like a ball on the rim of the horizon, when, in fact, its whole body has descended below it.

To know, then, just where the line of sight from Blue Hill would cut the Cape Ann lighthouse one must know both the elevation of the hill and the refractive index of the atmosphere at the time and place, for that is a variable meteorological element. But there is an approximate formula, which I borrow from Professor Young, that will solve the problem when the data are ascertained. The dip of the line of sight to the horizon is equal, in minutes of arc, to the square root of the observer's elevation in feet above sea level. This must be corrected for refraction, which ordinarily diminishes the dip by about 5 per cent. of the calculated amount.

To get the distance in miles corresponding to any given angle of horizontal dip, multiply the tangent of that angle, taken from a trigonometrical table, by the radius of the earth. The mistakes of the earth-fasteners in finding, as they asserted, level spaces of water miles in length were shown up by R. A. Proctor many years ago. See his "Astronomical Paradoxes."

The Khaki Boys Who Were Not at the Front

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1918, by the Star Company.

OH, it is not just the men who face the guns,
Not the fighters at the Front alone, today
Who will bring the longed-for close to the bloody fray, for those
Could not carry on that fray without the ones
Who are working at war's problems far away.

You are all our splendid heroes in the strife;
And we class you with the warriors maimed and scarred,
Though you never have been near enough the battle din to hear,
While you labored in the dull routine of life
In your khaki suits with sleeves that are not barred.

You have offered up yourselves to save the world;
You have felt the abnegation of the Christ;
And whatever work you do is a noble work and true;
Though it be not done with banners all unfurled,
You will find it has, in sight of God, sufficed.

While you carry back no medals when you go,
Not without you had the fighters borne war's brunt;
So just lift your heads uncowed, for your country will be proud,
And its lasting love and honor will bestow
On the khaki boys who were not at the Front.

"LISTENING IN" IS NOT A LADYLIKE PASTIME

By Winifred Black

THERE'S a great tempest in a teapot in a little town I know.

It's all about a woman who "listens in"—they've caught her at it, if you please, just as plain as print.

It seems she was suspected for a long time. She always had such an unusual knowledge of all the neighbors' affairs and who was going where, and what happened when, and yet she never seemed to go out anywhere. So they laid a trap for her.

One day, when she sat in her nice, neat little dining room, at her nice, neat little telephone table, in her nice, neat, respectable little house, having a perfectly lovely time with the receiver to her ear, listening to all sorts of things that didn't concern her in the least, one of those who talked at one end of the wire said suddenly: "Why, hello, Mrs. Smith!" and Mrs. Smith answered before she thought, "Hello!"

She Confessed

Then the fat was in the fire, and the cream was out of the jug, and the egg was out of the shell, and the frosting wouldn't stay on the cake!

Of course, Mrs. Smith could have said that there was some mistake, and that she thought her telephone rang, but she was so surprised and cross that she admitted the whole thing, and said, "Well, what of it. I guess I've got a right to amuse myself, haven't I?"

Up to the present writing she has never confessed that she is the least little bit ashamed of what she had been doing, although the rude boys of the neighborhood never see her coming down the street without listening intently at a cupped hand of an imaginary receiver, and the little girls make big eyes and whisper to each other when she passes.

Poor, foolish, idle, empty-headed woman! What a mess she's in—all for nothing!

What earthly difference did it make to her to know that Mrs. Jones wasn't going to have a dressmaker on Tuesday, as she had planned, but had changed her mind and wanted her to come Wednesday?

How did it possibly interest Mrs. Smith to hear Mrs. Robinson order a quarter's worth of sugar and half a dozen eggs and two pounds of butter from the grocer?

Did it really make life excitingly romantic to her to hearken to the voice of the elderly invalid asking the doctor what to do when her hand felt kind of queer and trembly, or her feet were not just as warm as she would like to have them?

And the little personal chats and the intimate confidences—if people on that line were foolish enough to give them over the 'phone—how could they be of the least importance to Mrs. Smith?

Why Do It?

"Listening in"—what a small, mean, petty, inconsequential thing to do!

Why should any one want to "listen in" on any line, any time, anywhere?

Isn't it enough of a bore to have to listen to Mrs. Brown when she tells you just what she did for Jimmie's whooping cough, and how many times a night she lit the croup kettle, and what she gave him for breakfast the first day he was up—when you meet her on your way home from the club and can't escape from her?

Isn't it bad enough to be held in a hypnotic trance while Mrs. Gossip says her mother-in-law's coming to visit her, and she really does't know what to do about it, because mother likes green tea and she likes black, and mother never feels as if she'd had any breakfast at all unless she has muffins or gems or something, as well as eggs and fruit, and all Mrs. Gossip and her husband ever can bear to look at is toast and a cup of black tea?

It's hard enough to escape from the little nothings of life when you meet people face to face and can't get away from them, but, oh, the hideous boredom of sitting at the telephone and hearkening to them when you don't have to!

Yet they say that we poor human beings are all alike.

ASKS WIVES TO REGARD COOKING AS FINE ART

By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow

THE Domestic Problem! It is no longer a little sum in mental arithmetic, but a proposition of higher mathematics. Euclid might have solved it, but it is beyond the powers of mere woman.

It isn't only a question of food conservation which confronts the housewives of the country. Food—the raw product—soars. Sydney Smith's recipe for welsh rarebit, "First, catch your hare," has taken on a new and deeper meaning. "First, buy your food."

How simple it sounds! But it presupposes a number of things, among others the possession of the price. Granting, however, that you have the price, the next question that confronts you is how to get it cooked. For some time the cook has been a vanishing lady, and now she is a mere speck on the horizon. In these changing times a cook is as great a luxury as diamonds or limousines, and no one can be sure of her. At any moment she may be proclaimed a "non-essential."

There is something more subtle than appears at first glance in the admonition which is flashed nightly upon the movie screen. "When the bread is passed, say 'No,' thank you; I prefer a potato."

It is in most cases the part of wisdom to choose the potato. To take the bread is a peculiarly reckless form of gambling, with one's digestion for a stake.

It matters not whether one is dining in the houses of the once idle, but now toiling rich, or at a smart restaurant, or sampling the fruits of a modest kitchenette, the same gummy, gray paste is offered for the staff of life, the same indescribable mess for cornbread. And one is supposed to be showing one's patriotism by eating it thankfully.

I am willing to eat clay if it will benefit my country. I would be glad to suffer any form of martyrdom if I could thereby help in winning the war. But useless sacrifice does not appeal to me. It is a waste of energy. There is not the slightest necessity for the wretched bread and cornbread that are everywhere offered. They are merely the triumphs of bad cooking.

I know whereof I speak when I say that excellent bread can be and is made of the various substitutes which we have for wheat, and there is nothing more delicious than cornbread when it is properly made. But only the infinitesimal minority seems to know how properly to make either of them.

And by the same token there is nothing better than the simple potato, not au gratined or croquetted, but boiled or baked in its jacket to just the perfect and exquisite degree of flakiness.

How many people can make an omelet as is an omelet? How many can make a cup of coffee that is the nectar of the gods and not just a nondescript black brew?

There are those rarified souls who affect not to know wherewithal they shall be fed. Well, "Aspera ad astra" is a very good motto, but unless your feet are pretty well planted on the earth you are going to bob around among the stars as aimlessly as a stray balloon. It may be a Puritanical narrowness on my part, but I have no belief in the mental qualities of any one who does not respect his food.

I believe that one of the reasons why men are more agreeable companions than women is that the majority of them know good food, and many of them can cook it. The greatest scholar I ever knew was also the best cook.

Cooking is not an exact science; it is an art. And cooks are born, not made. The difference between the trained cook and the born cook is the difference between the trained, conscientious musician and the virtuoso.

Oddly enough, some of the most domestic women don't know good from bad, while some of the busiest professional and business women are corking cooks.
